AUDIENCE FOUND "YOUNG TEDDY" TO BE "A CHIP OF THE OLD BLOCK"

Five Thousand Heard Him and the Total Attendance Was More Than 6,000—Postmaster DeWitt, Mayor Canfield and Philip Elting Made Brief and Bright Speeches.

Ulster county gave an old fashioned ovation at the Ulster County Farm Bureau picnic at Forsyth Park Wednesday afternoon to Assistant Secretary of the Navy Lieut. Col. Theodore Roosevelt who it unanimously decided not only is a distinguished son of a distinguished father but also "a chip of the old block." The welcome given to Lieut. Col. Roosevelt was equal in every way to the famous welcomes which were extended to his father when he visited Ulster county as a rough rider, as governor and as president of the United States. Roosevelt ideals are not dead in Ulster county.

Five Thousand Heard Roosevelt.

No count was taken of the number who attended the picnic or who heard Lieut. Col Roosevelt, but a conservative estimate places the Roosevelt auditors at 5,000 and the total picnic attendance sometime during the day at over 6,000. This estimate is based on a comparison with the crowd of spectators and participants whose panoramic photographs were taken by a New York photographer at the time of the recent Pythian pageant at Forsyth Park. He counted the facts within a specified area of the photograph he made and estimated the crowd banked against the wooded eminence at 3,500. Wednesday's crowd on the rocky slope of the park was much larger and in addition there was a large crowd behind the speakers' stand. Many people were engaged in various duties or in conversation while Lieut Col. Roosevelt was speaking and many arrived after he had finished.

Why They Came To Picnic.

After his arrival, Lieut. Col. Roosevelt strolled through the park for some time before going to the speakers' stand, where his appearance was greeted with tremendous applause.

Postmaster William C. DeWitt, chairman of the speakers' committee, presided and first introduced Mayor Canfield. Mr. DeWitt said:

"We are certainly starting under pleasing auspices and it is a pleasure and honor to preside at such a gathering and to present to you a man to whom the city owes a great deal.

"During the war Mayor Canfield more than did his duty in backing up the boys who went over there but at the same time he did not neglect our people at home and when one of our Kingston families presented a large tract of land to the city for a park he took steps to make it a park in reality and to him we owe this beautiful meeting place today. One of our distinguished visitors here today is Daniel Smiley who came with his wife and they just confessed to me that they came fifty per cent to see Colonel Roosevelt and fifty per cent to see Forsyth Park. It is a pleasure to present Mayor Canfield, to whom we owe this beautiful place." (Applause.)

What The Farmer Does.

Mayor Canfield was received with great applause. He said:

"It is a great pleasure for Kingston to greet you. From appearances this morning the work of the weather committee of the Farm Bureau appeared suspicious, but this afternoon we found they worked well and the result in most auspicious.

"It is especially a pleasure for Kingston to welcome the farmers of Ulster county. Their work forms part of the great scheme of life it self. Farmers furnish the food and fuel for millions of human machines. In their work in Ulster county they have been wonderfully aided by the Ulster County Farm and Home Bureaus. During the past few years much has been written and spoken about the farmer and the public has received it with sympathetic ears, because they now know that the farmer must be protected, that he is entitled to a reasonable return for his investment and his work. Our people to a large degree are dependent on the farmer and I feel sure they join with me when I say 'More power to the farm and success to the farmer.' (Applause.)

"Many written words are misleading, many spoken words are uttered heedlessly. What we need today are people of accurate observation, whose opportunities, education and experience qualify them to give words of good advice. We have such a man here today—a citizen of New York state of whom we are justly proud, to whom we extend our kindliest and heartiest greetings, and so I say, and I feel sure you will join me in saying, 'Long live the "bully" name of Roosevelt.'" (Cheers.)

Speaking From Experience.

Postmaster DeWitt then introduced Republican County Chairman Philip Elting, saying:

"If you knew Philip Elting as I knew him—" (Laughter.) "If you knew Philip Elting as I know him, you know that if you want a favor of him you must leave him alone during October and November, but it is perfectly safe to get next to him in December, and by February—about the fourteenth of the month—he will be willing to give you the prettiest little valentine you would want to have. (Laughter.) I am speaking from experience. (Laughter.) As the weather gets colder, his heart seems to get warmer. And it gives me great pleasure to say that during the war he was one of our most loyal citizens, and as supervisor in charge of the state military census he rendered valuable service. I take this opportunity to present him as the friend of our distinguished guest today as well as of his distinguished father."

Thanks God for Roosevelt.

Chairman Elting in responding, said:

"It is quite evident that the postmaster is on the pay roll (laughter), and it is quite as evident that he does not object to remaining on the pay roll (laughter). After all of that. Will is a pretty good fellow and a fairly good postmaster.

"Back in 1904 it was my privilege before an Ulster county audience to introduce the then president of the United States. My introduction was a single sentence: 'Our distinguished visitor today needs no introduction to an Ulster county audience.' That man was Theodore Roosevelt, then president of the United States. He had to my knowledge a warm spot in the heart for Ulster county, one of the pre-Dutch counties—and he was a Dutchman. Seventeen years rolled by. That great man was gathered to his fathers. Today we have with us his son, who bears his name. He is following, thank God, in the footsteps of his father. His father was in the legislature of New York. Young Teddy has been there. His father served as assistant secretary of the navy and today we find Young Teddy is assistant secretary of the navy. You are not here today to hear me or Postmaster DeWitt, but to hear Colonel Theodore Roosevelt."

"Folks" to Roosevelt.

Lieut. Col. Roosevelt was received with tremendous applause, to which he responded with the characteristic Roosevelt smile. He said:

"Mr. Chairman and Folks: In our family we always say when we understand people well and they understand us that they are just 'folks,' so I'm going to say 'folks' to you. (Applause).

"To begin with, Mayor Canfield has said he hoped the line of Roosevelt would keep on. I can assure you that it will. I have four children (laughter), three of them sons (Applause).

"It is a real pleasure to be before you, especially in such a beautiful park. And it is a pleasure to speak to farmers. My own occupation is put down as a farmer. When they called on me when I was named for the assembly the first time they asked me my occupation. I said I was in business before the war but was not in business then. So I was out of business. I had been a soldier, but I was through with that and hoped there never would be occasion again to call for soldiers, so they couldn't put that down. They suggested I was a politician, but I said I was not yet qualified. Then I looked out the window at the fields and cows and said they could put me down as a farmer. There has been one objection, which was raised by my wife who says I should have put down that I was the husband of a farmer. (Laughter and applause).

"While I was coming up in the car with this double Dutchman of yours, Philip Elting, I asked him his idea about what I ought to say to an Ulster county audience, particularly this audience. I gathered from all he said that he had only one idea—that he didn't want me to talk too long. (Laughter.) However, I'm just going to talk on three points.

Don't Rock The Boat.

"All of us Americans should consider and make up our minds: First, that the condition of the whole world and of the United States is troubled, that we have had a great cataclysm, that the capital of the world has been expended in the gigantic struggle of the World War, that everywhere people are off their moorings, that everywhere there is unrest, people are unsettled and there is no criterion to guide us because there is no parallel in history to present conditions.

"First thing, let us consider our danger. Don't let us swing from one extreme of opinion to another. A republic is simply the average citizen of the republic, and if we average citizens let ourselves go from one extreme to the other, we soon begin to rock the boat, we make sailing more unstable, and then look out for the rocks and reefs.

"You may be expecting a non-partisan speech, but let me tell you from the start I'm a mighty poor non-partisan. I have asked permission to speak of that which interests me most, of what is going on in the government now.

"Last autumn the people turned our national affairs over to the Republican party. They ask an account of the Republican party's stewardship of those affairs. I will sketch in brief what we have been doing and what we expect to do. It was an abnormal condition of affairs we faced and the thing to do was to get back to what President Harding calls 'normalcy.'

"We felt in the government that we had been running wild and we determined that the ship of state would not be manned by isms and ologies and captured by theory, and therefore we fired that crew and

WALLKILL BEAT RONDOUT VALLEY

The Rondout Valley may produce as good farmers as the Wallkill Valley but when it comes to baseball the Wallkill Valley is in the lead, or at least Wednesday afternoon at the big picnic of the Farm and Home Bureau and Chamber of Commerce at Forsyth Park the Wallkill Valley players were in the lead at the end of the seven inning game. The Wallkill Valley players with Forsyth on the mound rolled five perfectly good runs while all the Rondout players were receiving were goose-eggs. In the fifth the Rondout players had a chance but Forsyth tightened up and with excellent support pulled out of a dangerous situation. North, who was on the mound for the Rondout Valley team started off the fifth with a neat two bagger and was followed by Van Benscoten who poled out a single. North came to a halt on third and never did get further, the next three men went out in one, two three order.

The game which was played on the diamond above the upper tennis courts, was witnessed by a large number of people and was a mighty good game. The lineup of the victorious Wallkill nine was:

The Rondout Valley lineup:

Barley, 3b; Quick, cf; Winne, ss; North, p; Van Benscoten, 2b; Lawrence, 1b; Davenport, lf; Cribbins, rf; Christiana, 2b; Osterhoudt, c.

The score by innings:

The Real Thriller.

The real game of the day was immediately following the Wallkill-Rondout game when "Dave" Burgevin's Farmers nine took the field against the Chamber of Commerce nine. This game although it only went two innings was a thriller. There was more hard work and less results in this game than in any game played this far on the Forsyth Park diamond. With Arthur Davis of the Kingston Trust Company serving up the hot ones and "Herb" Thomas receiving them, it looked like a walk away for the Kingston players and at the end of the second inning this proved to be the fact when the score-keeper announced that his score seemed to show 8 runs for the local players while the Farmers had nothing but goose-eggs.

An Umpire "As Is."

E. L. Chase, manager of the Farm Bureau, was on the mound for the farmers and M. H. Davis was on the receiving end. The odd man on the diamond was Manager Green of the Orange County Farm Bureau, who stands considerably over six feet and weighs—well, in proportion. His decisions went undisputed and consequently must have been entirely fair to all concerned, at least there was no disputes with the umpire.

The Star Players.

Arthur Davis served up some hot ones during the first inning and "Herb" Thomas retired in the second stanza in favor of "Bob" Howard who finished out the game. The runs were dealt out in pairs. Thomas getting two, Davis two, Safford two, and Alderman-at-Large Dittus two. On account of the warm weather Chase let the locals hit and depended upon the air-tight out-field to back him up, which they did not do. However, Chester Young on third picked off some hot ones and prevented the score from being four or five times as large. John Saxe showed how they do it in West Hurley and poled out some nice hits while A. E. Jansen gave an exhibition of Indian club swinging every time he came to bat and fanned in a real scientific manner.

Had No Adding Machine.

Had the game gone nine innings the teams would still have been in the field and an adding machine would have been needed to keep score. However the game was a good one and was well worth the price of admission which was free.

AT THE THEATRES.

Vaudeville At Opera House—Ethel Clayton At Keeney's.

ROOSA WITH LOCAL Y. M. C. A.

Clinton S. Roosa of Middletown, N. Y., begins work with the Central Young Men's Christian Association, Kingston, today. He is to be office and membership secretary. Mr. Roosa is a young man 22 years of age who has seen overseas service. He was with the 27th Division when they made the assault on the Hindenburgh line. He was wounded and gassed and after spending several months in the hospital went back to the Division and later on home.

Mr. Roosa became interested in a Boys Club work and finding that this line of work appealed to him he took a course in Columbia University giving special study and time to Boys work. He has also done some studying at the Y. M. C. A. summer school at Silver Bay, N. Y. This summer he was connected with the Orange county Y. M. C. A. camp which was related to the Kingston camp. His work there proved very successful and he had been well recommended for a capable and earnest worker and the young men and boys of Kingston will welcome him to this city.

GARAGE MEN HAVE PROBLEMS

But With The Help Of a Conscience And a Well Equipped Shop They Can Be Worked Out, Mr. Snyder Tells Rotarians.

Plans and rules for the attendance contest were adopted at the Rotary Club luncheon on Wednesday, and are now in force. Members of winning teams and their wives will dine at the expense of the losing teams at the end of the contest, which lasts until the end of October. It was decided to postpone the inter-city meet until October 12 and the matter of making the Rotary-Kiwanis baseball game the attraction at a basket picnic, admission to be charged and the proceeds to be donated to some charity, was left to the entertainment committee.

The speaker of the day was Clark Snyder, who told the Rotarians how a garage with a conscience is run and incidentally outlined a plan for further growth of the conscience in the matter of repair bills. Mr. Snyder is one of the proprietors of the Eagle Garage. He said:

I have charge of the service and repair end of our business, so will try and tell you our methods of handling this part of the garage business. We will start for example with a car coming in for repairs. If it is a long job we take everything out of the car including tools, tires, tubes, chains, etc., and put them in lockers. The car is then taken out with the owner and tested. It is then brought in and the necessary repairs entered on a repair tag. After the repairs are made it is tested out and if it is O. K. the owner is notified it is ready. When the owner calls it is again tried out with the owner driving as he is the one to have judgment on its performance. The service end of the business is very hard to keep running smooth. Most everybody would like to have their repairs made at once and some people can not understand why we can not go right to work on their car as soon as it comes in the garage. We try to schedule our work ahead sometimes as much as 3 or 4 weeks. It is quite a problem to do this as there is always a large number of small jobs coming in all the time which we try to take care of. The repair game has made rapid strides in the last few years and has now got down to a legitimate business. There was a time when an owner would bring in his car for repairs and when it was taken out it would not run as well as before repairs were made, besides paying a large bill like a plumber charges.

We have a modern repair shop equipped with all the latest labor saving machinery, our equipment in the shop alone representing an investment of over $15,000.

We are at the present time compiling data taken from our repair tags with the idea of making a flat price for certain repairs. The average owner would be better satisfied to get a bill something like this:

Cleaning carbon, grinding valves, cleaning spark plugs and carburetor and adjusting ignition points.... $10.

Than to get a bill like this:

10 hours labor................ $10.

Of course it is going to take a little time to get this worked out so as to be fair to the owner and repair man, but I am sure it will be more satisfactory than the old way.

We have our troubles sometimes to satisfy everybody but we try our best to do so. For example, Mr. Smith is having some done which will require several hours. Mr. Jones drives in and wants a small job done right away which would require 15 or 20 minutes. We cannot tell him we can't take care of him as everybody is busy so we take the man off Mr. Smith's job. Well sometimes it is all right and sometimes Mr. Smith is peeved but we try to explain it to him in this way. Put yourself in the other fellows place. Automobiles are sold today in the merits of service after sale. If the owner can not get good service after sale he has purchased a certain car he does not want to invest his money in that car for sometime sooner or later he will need to have some repairs made. Today you are selling service as well as the car.

One of the greatest troubles in the automobile business is this, there are a great many people owning cars that can not afford to drive them. They manage to buy one but do not figure the cost to keep them running and when repairs are made they feel they are getting robbed which makes it unsatisfactory for all concerned. I could go on and tell you how repairs are made but most of you have very [illegible] read all about the [illegible] so I will not take any more of your valuable time.

FIGHT CONTINUES IN WEST VIRGINIA

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Charleston, W. Va., Sept. 1.—Reports from the Logan Boone battle front received here indicate that three deputies and from one to twenty miners were killed or wounded in the fighting yesterday and last night.

The fighting is continuing this morning, according to reports reaching the governor's office.

No reports of further casualties have come in yet today although it is believed that there have been many more due to the great volume of shooting which has been almost continuous since day break yesterday.

The belief was expressed in official circles today that the four deputies taken prisoner by the miners Sunday have been killed as a result of the renewed fighting.

Early reports indicated that there had been some firing in Crooked Creek district this morning and there was no evidence that the miners had begun to disperse. On the other hand, recruits were reported still arriving.

Plans have been laid before Secretary of War Weeks for aerial raids on the armed bands with tear gas and nauseating gas. The secretary said, however, that this was a matter of military detail and would not state whether orders had been issued for the use of these weapons in dispersing the mobs.

It was stated the bombs could be so handled that the gases would sweep wide areas, and that the consequent result would be the scattering of the forces unable to withstand the effects of the gas.

Secretary Weeks was still hopeful today that federal intervention might be avoided. He said that the only reports he had received from West Virginia today were despatched last night by Major Thompson and stated that the situation was quiet.

The war department has received official confirmation of the death of but one man during the recent fighting. Deputy Sheriff Gore was reported killed and there were unconfirmed reports of other deaths.

BELFAST CALM AFTER THE STORM

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Belfast, Sept. 1.—This city was comparatively calm following violent disorders in which 15 were killed and more than 100 were wounded. There are sixty persons in hospitals and more than 40 others were treated in their homes. Before the rioting was quelled it had spread to the Falls Road and Shankhill Road districts. The soldiers had to fire numerous volleys to separate the Sinn Fein and Unionist combatants.

Five Thousand Heard Him and the Total Attendance Was More Than 6,000—Postmaster DeWitt, Mayor Canfield and Philip Elting Made Brief and Bright Speeches.

Ulster county gave an old fashioned ovation at the Ulster County Farm Bureau picnic at Forsyth Park Wednesday afternoon to Assistant Secretary of the Navy Lieut. Col. Theodore Roosevelt who it unanimously decided not only is a distinguished son of a distinguished father but also "a chip of the old block." The welcome given to Lieut. Col. Roosevelt was equal in every way to the famous welcomes which were extended to his father when he visited Ulster county as a rough rider, as governor and as president of the United States. Roosevelt ideals are not dead in Ulster county.

Five Thousand Heard Roosevelt.

No count was taken of the number who attended the picnic or who heard Lieut. Col. Roosevelt, but a conservative estimate places the Roosevelt auditors at 5,000 and the total picnic attendance sometime during the day at over 6,000. This estimate is based on a comparison with the crowd of spectators and participants whose panoramic photographs were taken by a New York photographer at the time of the recent Pythian pageant at Forsyth Park. He counted the facts within a specified area of the photograph he made and estimated the crowd banked against the wooded eminence at 3,500. Wednesday's crowd on the rocky slope of the park was much larger and in addition there was a large crowd behind the speakers' stand. Many people were engaged in various duties or in conversation while Lieut. Col. Roosevelt was speaking and many arrived after he had finished.

Why They Came To Picnic.

After his arrival, Lieut. Col. Roosevelt strolled through the park for some time before going to the speakers' stand, where his appearance was greeted with tremendous applause.

Postmaster William C. DeWitt, chairman of the speakers' committee, presided and first introduced Mayor Canfield. Mr. DeWitt said:

"We are certainly starting under pleasing auspices and it is a pleasure and honor to preside at such a gathering and to present to you a man to whom the city owes a great deal.

"During the war Mayor Canfield more than did his duty in backing up the boys who went over there but at the same time he did not neglect our people at home and when one of our Kingston families presented a large tract of land to the city for a park he took steps to make it a park in reality and to him we owe this beautiful meeting place today. One of our distinguished visitors here today is Daniel Smiley who came with his wife and they just confessed to me that they came fifty per cent to see Colonel Roosevelt and fifty per cent to see Forsyth Park. It is a pleasure to present Mayor Canfield, to whom we owe this beautiful place." (Applause.)

What The Farmer Does.

Mayor Canfield was received with great applause. He said:

"It is a great pleasure for Kingston to greet you. From appearances this morning the work of the weather committee of the Farm Bureau appeared suspicious, but this afternoon we found they worked well and the result in most auspicious.

"It is especially a pleasure for Kingston to welcome the farmers of Ulster county. Their work forms part of the great scheme of life itself. Farmers furnish the food and fuel for millions of human machines. In their work in Ulster county they have been wonderfully aided by the Ulster County Farm and Home Bureaus. During the past few years much has been written and spoken about the farmer and the public has received it with sympathetic ears, because they now know that the farmer must be protected, that he is entitled to a reasonable return for his investment and his work. Our people to a large degree are dependent on the farmer and I feel sure they join with me when I say 'More power to the farm and success to the farmer.' (Applause.)

"Many written words are misleading, many spoken words are uttered heedlessly. What we need today are people of accurate observation, whose oportunities, education and experience qualify them to give words of good advice. We have such a man here today—a citizen of New York state of whom we are justly proud, to whom we extend our kindliest and heartiest greetings, and so I say, and I feel sure you will join me in saying, 'Long live the "bully" name of Roosevelt.'" (Cheers.)

Speaking From Experience.

Postmaster DeWitt then introduced Republican County Chairman Philip Elting, saying:

"If you knew Philip Elting as I know him—" (Laughter.) "If you knew Philip Elting as I know him, you know that if you want a favor of him you must leave him alone during October and November, but it is perfectly safe to get next to him in December, and by February—about the fourteenth of the month—he will be willing to give you the prettiest little valentine you would want to have. (Laughter.) I am speaking from experience. (Laughter.) As the weather gets colder, his heart seems to get warmer. And it gives me great pleasure to say that during the war he was one of our most loyal citizens, and as supervisor in charge of the state military census he rendered valuable service. I take this opportunity to present him as the friend of our distinguished guest today as well as of his distinguished father."

Thanks God for Roosevelt.

Chairman Elting in responding, said:

"It is quite evident that the postmaster is on the pay roll (laughter), and it is quite as evident that he does not object to remaining on the pay roll (laughter). After all of that, Will is a pretty good fellow and a fairly good postmaster.

"Back in 1904 it was my privilege before an Ulster county audience to introduce the then president of the United States. My introduction was a single sentence: 'Our distinguished visitor today needs no introduction to an Ulster county audience.' That man was Theodore Roosevelt, then president of the United States. He had to my knowledge a warm spot in the heart for Ulster county, one of the pre-Dutch counties—and he was a Dutchman. Seventeen years rolled by. That great man was gathered to his fathers. Today we have with us his son, who bears his name. He is following, thank God, in the footsteps of his father. His father was in the legislature of New York. Young Teddy has been there. His father served as assistant secretary of the navy and today we find Young Teddy is assistant secretary of the navy. You are not here today to hear me or Postmaster DeWitt, but to hear Colonel Theodore Roosevelt."

"Folks" to Roosevelt.

Lieut. Col. Roosevelt was received with tremendous applause, to which he responded with the characteristic Roosevelt smile. He said:

"Mr. Chairman and Folks: In our family we always say when we understand people well and they understand us that they are just 'folks,' so I'm going to say 'folks' to you. (Applause).

"To begin with, Mayor Canfield has said he hoped the line of Roosevelt would keep on. I can assure you that it will. I have four children (laughter), three of them sons. (Applause).

"It is a real pleasure to be before you, especially in such a beautiful park. And it is a pleasure to speak to farmers. My own occupation is put down as a farmer. When they called on me when I was named for the assembly the first time they asked me my occupation. I said I was in business before the war but was not in business then. So I was out of business. I had been a soldier, but I was through with that and hoped there never would be occasion again to call for soldiers, so they couldn't put that down. They suggested I was a politician, but I said I was not yet qualified. Then I looked out the window at the fields and cows and said they could put me down as a farmer. There has been one objection, which was raised by my wife who says I should have put down that I was the husband of a farmer. (Laughter and applause).

"While I was coming up in the car with this double Dutchman of yours, Philip Elting, I asked him his idea about what I ought to say to an Ulster county audience, particularly this audience. I gathered from all he said that he had only one idea—that he didn't want me to talk too long. (Laughter.) However, I'm just going to talk on three points.

Don't Rock The Boat.

"All of us Americans should consider and make up our minds: First, that the condition of the whole world and of the United States is troubled, that we have had a great cataclysm, that the capital of the world has been expended in the gigantic struggle of the World War, that everywhere people are off their moorings, that everywhere there is unrest, people are unsettled and there is no criterion to guide us because there is no parallel in history to present conditions.

"First thing, let us consider our danger. Don't let us swing from one extreme of opinion to another. A republic is simply the average citizen of the republic, and if we average citizens let ourselves go from one extreme to the other, we soon begin to rock the boat, we make sailing more unstable, and then look out for the rocks and reefs.

"You may be expecting a nonpartisan speech, but let me tell you from the start Im a mighty poor nonpartisan. I have asked permission to speak of that which interests me most, of what is going on in the government now.

"Last autumn the people turned our national affairs over to the Republican party? They ask an account of the Republican party's stewardship of those affairs. I will sketch in brief what we have been doing and what we expect to do. It was an abnormal condition of affairs we faced and the thing to do was to get back to what President Harding calls 'normalcy.'

"We felt in the government that we had been running wild and we determined that the ship of state would not be manned by isms and ologies and captured by theory, and therefore we fired that crew and

WALLKILL BEAT RONDOUT VALLEY

The Rondout Valley may produce as good farmers as the Wallkill Valley but when it comes to baseball the Wallkill Valley is in the lead, or at least Wednesday afternoon at the big picnic of the Farm and Home Bureau and Chamber of Commerce at Forsyth Park the Wallkill Valley players were in the lead at the end of the seven inning game. The Wallkill Valley players with Forsyth on the mound rolled five perfectly good runs while all the Rondout players were receiving were goose-eggs. In the fifth the Rondout players had a chance but Forsyth tightened up and with excellent support pulled out of a dangerous situation. North, who was on the mound for the Rondout Valley team started off the fifth with a neat two bagger and was followed by Van Benscoten who poled out a single. North came to a halt on third and never did get further, the next three men went out in one, two three order.

The game which was played on the diamond above the upper tennis courts, was witnessed by a large number of people and was a mighty good game. The lineup of the victorious Wallkill nine was:

The Rondout Valley lineup:

Barley, 3b; Quick, cf; Winne, ss; North, p; Van Benscoten, 2b; Lawrence, 1b; Davenport, lf; Cribbins, rf; Christiana, 2b; Osterhoudt, c.

The score by innings:

The Real Thriller.

The real game of the day was immediately following the Wallkill-Rondout game when "Dave" Burgevin's Farmers nine took the field against the Chamber of Commerce nine. This game although it only went two innings was a thriller. There was more hard work and less results in this game than in any game played this far on the Forsyth Park diamond. With Arthur Davis of the Kingston Trust Company serving up the hot ones and "Herb" Thomas receiving them, it looked like a walk away for the Kingston players and at the end of the second inning this proved to be the fact when the score-keeper announced that his score seemed to show 8 runs for the local players while the Farmers had nothing but goose-eggs.

An Umpire "As Is."

E. L. Chase, manager of the Farm Bureau, was on the mound for the farmers and M. H. Davis was on the receiving end. The odd man on the diamond was Manager Green of the Orange County Farm Bureau, who stands considerably over six feet and weighs—well, in proportion. His decisions went undisputed and consequently must have been entirely fair to all concerned, at least there was no disputes with the umpire.

The Star Players.

Arthur Davis served up some hot ones during the first inning and "Herb" Thomas retired in the second stanza in favor of "Bob" Howard who finished out the game. The runs were dealt out in pairs, Thomas getting two, Davis two, Safford two and Alderman-at-Large Dittus two. On account of the warm weather Chase let the locals hit and depended upon the air-tight out-field to back him up, which they did not do. However, Chester Young on third picked off some hot ones and prevented the score from being four or five times as large. John Saxe showed how they do it in West Hurley and poled out some nice hits while A. E. Jansen gave an exhibition of Indian club swinging every time he came to bat and fanned in a real scientific manner.

Had No Adding Machine.

Had the game gone nine innings the teams would still have been in the field and an adding machine would have been needed to keep score. However the game was a good one and was well worth the price of admission which was free.

AT THE THEATRES.

Vaudeville At Opera House—Ethel Clayton At Keeney's.

Richey Craig and his musical comedy company of fun makers is making joy at the Kingston Opera House again tonight and will appear again Saturday afternoon and night. The photoplay, Eugene O'Brien in "Gilded Lies," is also a very stirring story. Tomorrow, matinee and night, "Bringing Up Father In Wall Street."

Ethel Clayton in "Sham" at Keeney's, is an excellent combination of clever comedy and serious moral.

Bebe Daniels in "Ducks and Drakes" at the Auditorium tonight. Art Accord in "The White Horseman" also. Friday "The Sky Ranger," a Pathe serial with fifteen weeks of spine shivers.

ROOSA WITH LOCAL Y. M. C. A.

Clinton S. Roosa of Middletown, N. Y., begins work with the Central Young Men's Christian Association, Kingston, today. He is to be office and membership secretary. Mr. Roosa is a young man 22 years of age who has seen overseas service. He was with the 27th Division when they made the assault on the Hindenburgh line. He was wounded and gassed and after spending several months in the hospital went back to the Division and later on home.

Mr. Roosa became interested in a Boys Club work and finding that this line of work appealed to him he took a course in Columbia University giving special study and time to Boys work. He has also done some studying at the Y. M. C. A. summer school at Silver Bay, N. Y. This summer he was connected with the Orange county Y. M. C. A. camp which was related to the Kingston camp. His work there proved very successful and he had been well recommended for a capable and earnest worker and the young men and boys of Kingston will welcome him to this city.

GARAGE MEN HAVE PROBLEMS

But With The Help Of a Conscience And a Well Equipped Shop They Can Be Worked Out, Mr. Snyder Tells Rotarians.

Plans and rules for the attendance contest were adopted at the Rotary Club luncheon on Wednesday, and are now in force. Members of winning teams and their wives will dine at the expense of the losing teams at the end of the contest, which last's until the end of October. It was decided to postpone the inter-city meet until October 12 and the matter of making the Rotary-Kiwanis baseball game the attraction at a basket picnic, admission to be charged and the proceeds to be donated to some charity, was left to the entertainment committee.

The speaker of the day was Clark Snyder, who told the Rotarians how a garage with a conscience is run and incidentally outlined a plan for further growth of the conscience in the matter of repair bills. Mr. Snyder is one of the proprietors of the Eagle Garage. He said:

I have charge of the service and repair end of our business, so will try and tell you our methods of handling this part of the garage business. We will start for example with a car coming in for repairs. If it is a long job we take everything out of the car including tools, tires, tubes, chains, etc., and put them in lockers. The car is then taken out with the owner and tested. It is then brought in and the necessary repairs entered on a repair tag. After the repairs are made it is tested out and if it is O. K. the owner is notified it is ready. When the owner calls it is again tried out with the owner driving as he is the one to have judgment on its performance. The service end of the business is very hard to keep running smooth. Most everybody would like to have their repairs made at once and some people can not understand why we can not go right to work on their car as soon as it comes in the garage. We try to schedule our work ahead sometimes as much as 3 or 4 weeks. It is quite a problem to do this as there is always a large number of small jobs coming in all the time which we try to take care of. The repair game has made rapid strides in the last few years and has now got down to a legitimate business. There was a time when an owner would bring in his car for repairs and when it was taken out it would not run as well as before repairs were made, besides paying a large bill like a plumber charges.

We have a modern repair shop equipped with all the latest labor saving machinery, our equipment in the shop alone representing an investment of over $15,000.

We are at the present time compiling data taken from our repair tags with the idea of making a flat price for certain repairs. The average owner would be better satisfied to get a bill something like this:

Cleaning carbon, grinding valves, cleaning spark plugs and carburettor and adjusting ignition points....$10.

Than to get a bill like this:

10 hours labor.....$10.

Of course it is going to take a little time to get this worked out so as to be fair to the owner and repair man, but I am sure it will be more satisfactory than the old way.

We have our troubles sometimes to satisfy everybody but we try our best to do so. For example, Mr. Smith is having some done which will require several hours. Mr. Jones drives in and wants a small job done right away which would require 15 or 20 minutes. We cannot tell him we can't take care of him as everybody is busy so we take the man off Mr. Smith's job. Well sometimes it is all right and sometimes Mr. Smith is peeved but we try to explain it to him in this way. Put yourself in the other fellows place. Automobiles are sold today in the merits of service after sale. If the owner can not get good service after sale he has purchased a certain car he does not want to invest his money in that car for sometime, sooner or later he will need to have some repairs made. Today you are selling service as well as the car.

One of the greatest troubles in the automobile business is this, there are a great many people owning cars that can not afford to drive them. They manage to buy one but do not figure the cost to keep them running and when repairs are made they feel they are getting robbed which makes it unsatisfactory for all concerned. I could go on and tell you how cars are made but most of you have seen or read all about their construction so I will not take any more of your valuable time.

FIGHT CONTINUES IN WEST VIRGINIA

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Charleston, W. Va., Sept. 1.—Reports from the Logan Boone battle front received here indicate that three deputies and from one to twenty miners were killed or wounded in the fighting yesterday and last night.

The fighting is continuing this morning, according to reports reaching the governor's office.

No reports of further casualties have come in yet today although it is believed that there have been many more due to the great volume of shooting which has been almost continuous since day break yesterday.

The belief was expressed in official circles today that the four deputies taken prisoner by the miners Sunday have been killed as a result of the renewed fighting.

Early reports indicated that there had been some firing in Crooked Creek district this morning and there was no evidence that the miners had begun to disperse. On the other hand, recruits were reported still arriving.

Plans have been laid before Secretary of War Weeks for aerial raids on the armed bands with tear gas and nauseating gas. The secretary said, however, that this was a matter of military detail and would not state whether orders had been issued for the use of these weapons in dispersing the mobs.

It was stated the bombs could be so handled that the gases would sweep wide areas, and that the consequent result would be the scattering of the forces unable to withstand the effects of the gas.

Secretary Weeks was still hopeful today that federal intervention might be avoided. He said that the only reports he had received from West Virginia today were despatched last night by Major Thompson and stated that the situation was quiet.

The war department has received official confirmation of the death of but one man during the recent fighting. Deputy Sheriff Gore was reported killed and there were unconfirmed reports of other deaths.

BELFAST CALM AFTER THE STORM

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Belfast, Sept. 1.—This city was comparatively calm following violent disorders in which 15 were killed and more than 100 were wounded. There are sixty persons in hospitals and more than 40 others were treated in their homes. Before the rioting was quelled it had spread to the Falls Road and Shankhill Road districts. The soldiers had to fire numerous volleys to separate the Sinn Fein and Unionist combatants.

SINN FEIN REPLY. REACHES PREMIER

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

SHEEP AND DOG.

"I am so glad," said the sheep dog whose name was Scott, to one of the sheep, "that I am here to look after you. I think my work is a wonderful one and I am so glad that I am not a dog in the hot city."

"Isn't the hot city pleasant?" asked the sheep.

"It's all very well for some," said Scott, "but I wouldn't like it.

"In the first place a dog has to wear a muzzle in a city, or in a good many cities, at any rate, and any one who knows anything about dogs knows that a dog hates a muzzle, especially in the summer time.

"It is in the summer time that a dog is so hot and then he perspires and lets off a lot of the heat by keeping his mouth open.

"What can he do if his mouth is held together by a muzzle?

"A tight muzzle is a horrible thing. Then in a city people are so ready to think if a dog gets the least bit excited and does anything that is strange that he must be mad. Oh, yes, people are always ready to believe that a dog is mad and you know, Sheep, that a mad dog is a very rare and unusual thing to find. Dogs don't go mad often. In fact, as I said, it is very, very seldom that a dog is what people would call a mad dog. People should know that, I think.

"But here where I am, there is no danger of anything like that happening. No one will put a muzzle on me and no one will call me a mad dog. I like it here so much and I like to watch over you, Sheep. I like to see how you graze and chew the grass and how you walk up a hill by going a few steps and then eating along sides of the hill and then taking a few more steps and eating along back the other side so that you don't have to climb a hill straight up which would be a very hard and difficult thing to do. I always admire the way you do this immensely."

"Baa, baa," said the sheep, "thank you Scott for the nice compliment. We are really very much obliged, but climbing a hill that way does make it easier, much easier."

"Why," said Scott, "you really have horse sense in doing such a bright thing. Now you know when people speak of any one having horse sense they mean that that person they've said had horse sense has a lot of sense.

"I Like to Watch Over You."

"For a horse has so much sense that there has come to be an expression like that. If a person has a lot of sense they say he has horse sense and that's a pretty big compliment to the horse, I must say. And it is a compliment which he deserves. How much you are eating, Sheep. Aren't you really through grazing?"

"Well," said the sheep who led the others, "we are saving a little space in case we see some other very good grains. But we are mostly through, it is true."

"People talk like that," said Scott. "I've heard them when I have been down in the dining room. When they have eaten and eaten they say that they have still saved a little space for an after dinner candy. That is what they say! Ah, there goes a brown butterfly with many pretty colors on his wings. How small and dainty he is. His orange and yellow spots are so gay and lovely. I am certainly a big creature compared to him!"

"Ah, that is true," said the sheep. "Baa, baa, baa, that is true. But though you don't wear all the gay colors of the butterfly and though you aren't so small and though you aren't so dainty we don't know what we would do without you to look after us. That little butterfly couldn't do that."

"True," said Scott. "Well, I am glad to be useful and after all I wouldn't be a butterfly for anything. I'd much rather be a dog and have work to do for others as well as for myself. And I'm so very, very glad that I live in the country and not in the city!"

The Usual Thing.

Tommy was two years younger than Harry, and, so he would in many such cases, Harry's gorgeous clothes fell to his lot.

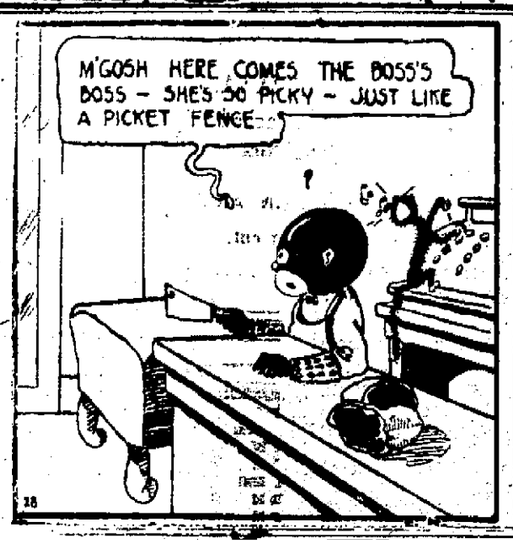

On one occasion Harry made a startling discovery. "I've got a loose tooth," he announced. "I think I'll pull it out."

"Don't do it," implored Tommy, "or mother will make me wear it."—Harper's Magazine.

GAS BUGGIES—Big events in little men's lives

THE KITCHEN CABINET

(©, 1921, Western Newspaper Union.)

But words are things, and a small drop of ink, falling like dew upon a thought, produces that which makes thousands, perhaps millions, think.—Byron.

SUMMER DISHES.

For a pint of cooked fresh beans, chop fine two slices of leek or a thin half-slice of Bermuda onion; add three tablespoonfuls of oil, one-quarter of a teaspoonful of paprika, half a teaspoonful of salt, half a chili pepper, chopped fine, one and one-half tablespoonfuls of red wine vinegar. Mix well and turn on a plate. Set slices of hard-cooked egg around the beans and a tablespoonful of mayonnaise on top. Garnish with a sprinkling of parsley.

Macedoine of Vegetables in Tomato Jelly.—Cook, very gently, two pints of tomatoes, two branches of parsley, a stalk of celery, two tablespoonfuls of mushroom trimmings (the peel and stalks), two slices of onion, with two cloves, a small bit of bay leaf and one-half teaspoonful of salt 15 minutes; strain; add one-quarter of a package of gelatin, softened in one-quarter of a cupful of cold water; add a few drops of tobasco sauce. Chop fine the cooked white of an egg. Cut in bits any vegetables at hand, such as beans, asparagus and celery hearts, with cooked peas. Set in cold molds in crushed ice; in the bottom of each put a portion of the egg white; add the prepared vegetables and any that is left of the egg to the tomato, which has been cooled somewhat; stir until the tomato holds in the vegetables, then use to fill the molds. Serve on heart leaves of lettuce with mayonnaise dressing.

Strawberry Jam Tarts.—Make a flaky pastry and roll out and cut into rounds with a large cutter. With a very small cutter or pastry tube, cut a circle of little rounds in one-half of the paste, but do not remove the centers. Set a generous spoonful of strawberry jam in the center of the plain rounds, cover with the other rounds after wetting the edges and firmly press the edges. Brush with milk and water and sprinkle with granulated sugar. Bake for 15 minutes.

Quince are delicious baked in a casserole. Add boiling water, orange peel and sugar, filling the centers with sugar and butter.

"Bonanza" Signifies Good Fortune.

"Bonanza" is a Spanish word meaning "fair weather" or a "favoring wind." It is used in mining districts to signify an abundance of precious metal or rich ore. The miners of Comstock Lode, a wonderful gold and silver mine in Nevada which yielded 300 million dollars worth of ore in thirty years, first used "bonanza" in this way. The word is now also used to signify any good fortune or successful enterprise.

Stories of Great Scouts

By Elmo Scott Watson

© Western Newspaper Union.

CAPT. JACK CRAWFORD, THE SCOUT WHO WROTE POETRY

When a bit of sunshine hits ye
After passin' of a cloud,
When a fit of laughter gits ye
An' yer spine is feelin' proud,
Don't forgit to up and fling it
At a soul that's feelin' blue,
For the mimit that ye sling it
It's a boomerang to you.

That was the philosophy of Capt. Jack Crawford, the poet-scout. A poet and a scout! A strange combination, but he excelled as both. John Wallace Crawford was an Irish boy who came to this country shortly before the Civil war began and enlisted in the Union army when he was only sixteen years old. While lying in a hospital, a sister of mercy taught him to read and write.

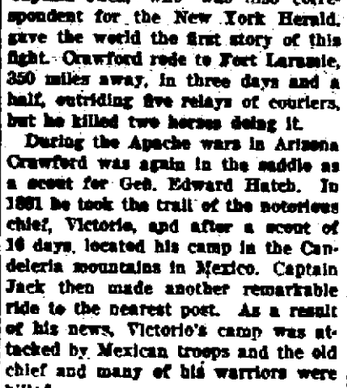

After the war Crawford drifted West and became a miner in the Black Hills of South Dakota. When the Black Hills rangers were organized to protect the miners from hostile Sioux and bands of highway robbers, Jack was chosen chief. In one fight he killed three desperadoes.

At the outbreak of the Sioux war in 1876 Captain Jack enlisted as a scout and rose to the position of chief of scouts for the Fifth cavalry. After the battle of Slim Buttes, S. D., where Chief American Horse was killed, Captain Jack, who was also correspondent for the New York Herald, gave the world the first story of this fight. Crawford rode to Fort Laramie, 350 miles away, in three days and a half, outriding five relays of couriers, but he killed two horses doing it.

During the Apache wars in Arizona Crawford was again in the saddle as a scout for Gen. Edward Hatch. In 1881 he took the trail of the notorious chief, Victorio, and after a scout of 10 days, located his camp in the Candeleria mountains in Mexico. Captain Jack then made another remarkable ride to the nearest post. As a result of his news, Victorio's camp was attacked by Mexican troops and the old chief and many of his warriors were killed.

When the Indian wars were over, Captain Jack began writing down the verses which he had recited to his comrades around many a campfire on the Indian campaigns. He went on the lecture platform and in a short time the "Poet-Scout" was one of the best-known of the old-time scouts in the country, second only to his old comrade of the Fifth cavalry, Buffalo Bill. In a little over a month after Buffalo Bill's death, Captain Jack followed him on the Long Trail. He died in New York February 28, 1917.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Sept. 1.—The stock market showed an irregular tone at the opening today. U. S. Steel started ¼ higher at 74⅛ and Bethlehem Steel "B" was ¼ lower at 48¾. American Sugar was in supply falling one point to 58⅝ and Sears Roebuck yielded ⅝ to 63¼. Reading started ½ lower at 66½ while Northern Pacific was ⅝ higher at 73⅝. Tobacco products opened ½ lower at 60½ and then rose to 61½. Mexican Petroleum showed a gain of 1 point at 101 and Famous Players was 1 point higher at 56. Studebaker was fractionally higher at 72¼.

Business was extremely quiet after the first fifteen minutes and price movements continued mixed, some issues moving up because of covering of shorts while others declined as the result of lack of demand. Tobacco stocks were prominent and strong.

The market continued quiet during a good part of the afternoon but just before two o'clock buying orders came into Mexican Petroleum on a large scale carrying that stock up over three points to 105, a gain of five points for the day and of twenty points from its low price of a week ago. Pan-American Petroleum followed on this advance selling at 47, a gain of 2¾ points.

Interment will be in the family plot in Montrepose Cemetery.

SAYS WAR HELPED RELIGION

Big Fight Made Soldiers Better Men, Is Assertion Made by Man Who Knows Them.

The American soldier came out of the war with more religion than he went in, according to Rev. Henry Russell Talbot, canon of the National cathedral at Washington, who arises to defend the doughboy from the libel that the "war ruined him."

"He is a better man for having been in the army," asserts the canon, referring to the veteran, the Stars and Stripes states.

Canon Talbot was senior chaplain of the First division of the American expeditionary forces. In a communication to national headquarters of the American Legion at Indianapolis he admits the American, as he saw him in France, was "uncommonly timid in the exercise of his religion. He was frightened at his own religious shadow, or he might have been grossly ignorant of the content and practice of his religion."

But as the First division's senior chaplain, the canon was in charge of all the private belongings of the 1,900 Americans killed in the ten days' fighting in the Argonne, and in nine out of every ten of the men's kits found a crucifix, scapular, prayerbook or testament. "And in those days," Canon Talbot writes, "the First division was not carrying anything it did not deem essential."

"There was a kind of collectivism which outruns the ordinary standards of honesty," declares the canon, "but underneath there was implicit, if not explicit, reverence for the Son of Man."

REVEAL THEIR ARMY TRAINING

Ex-Service Men Instinctively Line Up When a Crowd Is Waiting to Be Served.

Army training still manifests itself in civilian life, and former soldiers automatically fall into line when they must wait to be served. In the army the men spent a great deal of their time waiting in line for mess, drawing stuff from the supply sergeant and a dozen other purposes.

The old army training revealed itself strongly during the recent hot spell at the Brooklyn Central Y. M. C. A., when apparently most of the 10,000 members sought to take advantage of the swimming pool. Crowds of young men stormed the locker rooms each evening. The ex-service men set the example by lining up and taking their turns to reach the gate. As each elevator disembarked its load the former soldiers automatically went to the rear. Younger men who had not had this training and sought to edge in far up the line were promptly pulled out and sent to their station. No ex-service man who has stood in line to draw a pair of socks or get a mess kit full of "slum" will permit anyone to get ahead of him.

KINGSTON, N. Y., SEPT. 1, 1921.

ZEALOTRY'S EXTREMES

The extremists in the prohibition ranks have gone so far as virtually to argue that the eighteenth amendment is the only part of the Constitution that is worthy of respect and that if any earlier part is in conflict with the new addition, or with any law based upon it, that offending part of the Constitution should be swept aside as of no consequence. This intolerance of attitude, with its essentially lawless chafing against constitutional restraints, was made perfectly clear in the Senate's discussion of the Stanley amendment to the supplementary prohibition enforcement bill, which made it a misdemeanor for a Federal enforcement agent to search property or premises of any person without a warrant, on the ground that the fourth amendment to the Constitution gives the people the right "to be secure in their persons, houses, papers and effects against unreasonable searches and seizures," that this great principle has been repeatedly affirmed by the Supreme Court, that it found place in the charter of every British colony and is traced back in English law to Magna Charta itself.

The zealots having reached such extremes, it was inevitable that sane and temperate friends of prohibition should rise in protest and, accordingly, in the Senate's discussion previous to its adoption of the amendment so violently opposed by the extremists, Mr. Ashurst, a consistent prohibitionist, said: "The liquor traffic is one thing I am willing to strike in the back or below the belt, but I am unwilling to strike the rights of the American people below the belt or in the back. The amendment was passed upon by those Senators favorable to prohibition. I have never cast a vote that could be called a 'wet' vote. It is a matter of principle with me. I believe it was a great day in the history of America when the eighteenth amendment was ratified. But there are other great questions. One of them is the assurance that we shall not impair the rights of American citizens for which the governments themselves exist, and when such rights of the citizens no longer exist the government ought to fall and will fall."

WHAT NEXT?

Among the peculiar developments of women suffrage, or what appear to be such, is the suit of a Minnesota man against his divorce-seeking wife for alimony, apparently on the ground that a woman, now that she is a citizen and full "equal" of man, should also pay to be relieved of irksome association with a worthless or otherwise unsatisfactory spouse. What appears to be another peculiar development is to be found in the methods of Manuel Herrick, elected last fall to represent in Congress the Eighth district of Oklahoma.

It seems that Mr. Herrick advertised himself to the fair sex, presumed to be still susceptible although citizens, voters and "equals" of men, as the "last scion of a noble family" and a great prize, listing among his qualifications a love so great that "he would ransom your soul from hell at the price of his own," a body and soul "on which there rests no moral stain," and further: "Age 34; height 6 feet, weight 184 pounds; chestnut-brown hair, brown eyes, and as far as masculine beauty, taking 100 as perfection, would grade about as follows: Face, 80 per cent; body, 95 per cent." Annoyed by too much publicity, Mr. Herrick now says his object was to laugh "beauty contests" out of existence, but it looks as if the laugh is on him.

Interest in the primaries is increasing and before long the nominations will be made. After the nominations, then the time comes for all to get together and elect the tickets. It is always a good thing to remember that Republicanism, like other good things, begins at home. The only way in which you can expect to get Republican efficiency is by electing Republicans. There is no other

Those who hold that the despotism of the Czars was more enlightened and humane than the alleged democracy of the Bolshevists will find support in the announcement that before the World War Russia exported nearly ten million tons of food annually and now clamors for 750,000 tons of food from abroad to keep a large part of its population from starving.

Can You Answer These Questions?

1. What is the best preventative to keep bee moth out of hives?

2. Have we fewer birds now than before the country was settled?

3. Are sunflower seeds good to eat?

Answers in Tomorrow's Nature Notes.

Answers To Previous Questions.

1. Is abalone shell the same as mother-of-pearl?

Structurally very similar, only that these two beautiful iridescent inner shell linings do not come from the same mollusc. Mother-of-pearl comes chiefly from an oyster found in Ceylon and some other tropical islands. Abalone is taken from Haliotis tuberculata, a gastropod found on parts of the California coast. The coloration of abalone is varied and handsome.

2. What birds are likely to use nesting boxes if I put them on my grounds?

As a rule, only species that naturally nest in holes in trees as bluebirds, wrens, swallows, martins, phoebes, woodpeckers, flickers, owls, etc. Robins and phoebe often will use a shallow tray like half a cigar box, nailed to a tree trunk or against a wall near the eaves. Farmers' Bulletin 609 has a reliable list of birds attractable to houses with diagrams and dimensions of bird houses.

3. From what trees or bushes can old fashioned dyes be obtained?

We can't list all but common among country people was dark brown from the bark and nut rinds of the butternut tree. Alder bark gave yellowish brown and orange; red or swamp maple, dark blue, bloodroot, flowering dogwood and wild madder, red. Rocky Mountain bee-plant and Sueda suffrutescens, one of the salt bush family, gave black. Many plants, notably the osage orange, will give yellow.

The First Modes of Fall

FALL SUITS

The Suits for the fall season show a wide variation of styles—some coats are long length, others medium. Beautiful straight line effects predominate, embroidered elaborately with braid, others handsomely fur trimmed. Then there are the more severe plain tailored models for the conservative woman. Colors are mostly navy, brown and black, and are less expensive than this spring season. Ranging in prices from

$45.00 TO $85.00

NEW DRESSES IN SILK AND WOOL

The Dresses for this fall season differ materially from the spring models, in that extraordinary length of line is given to this season's silhouette, long panels are used, and sleeves of the bell type. Some dresses in the extreme models are longer, much braid and embroidery are used most on the street wear dresses. The colors at present adopted by fashion seem to be navy and black with black predominating. Our prices are moderate for high grade garments.

You get that good taste in no other coffee!

Taste and smell determine good coffee. The thing is to get a coffee that tastes as good in the cup as it smells in the roasted berry. Reliance Coffee does that very thing.

No other coffee has this peculiar taste-smell characteristic. You find it in Reliance, because we mellow and roast it by an old-time special process.

Customers who use Reliance tell us they could identify it blindfolded by the rich bodied aroma.

You can rely on your sense of smell in selecting Reliance Coffee because that appetite-creating-odor is bound to linger until you pour out the last drop.

Your grocer will bring you a pound of it on his next call. Packed only in oval canisters, bearing our name. Wm. T. Reynolds & Co., Inc., Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

Work.

If the busy rich people watched and rebuked the idle rich people, all would be right among them; and if the busy poor people watched and rebuked the idle poor people, all would be right among them. But each looks for the fault of the other. A hard-working man of property is particularly offended by an idle beggar; and an orderly but poor workman is naturally intolerant of the licentious luxury of the rich. And what is severe judgment in the minds of the just men of either class becomes fierce enmity in the unjust—but among the unjust only. None but the dissolute among the poor look upon the rich as their natural enemies or desire to pillage their houses and divide their property. None but the dissolute among the rich speak in opprobrious terms of the vices and follies of the poor.—John Ruskin.

Russian Folk Songs Pathetic.

The Russian songs are most pathetic in character. Many of them are written in the Phrygian mode, and even those that begin in a major key often end in the minor, or perhaps on the supertonic of the key, or on some other minor chord which sounds strange and melancholy to western ears. The Russian folk songs are remarkable for their polyphonic tendency. According to Melgunov, a great authority, the "horo-vod" or choral song, was accompanied by secondary parts called "podgoloski," which ornamented and imitated the principal voice in a kind of free counterpoint. These part songs are mostly in celebration of ceremonial festivals, of the different seasons or of country pursuits and occupations.

AUDIENCE FOUND "YOUNG TEDDY"

have taken on board a crew of facts and Captain Common Sense, and we have started on a program of efficiency and economy.

"Every man and woman can talk best about what they are doing because they know their subject; so I will tell you how this program is working out in my own particular department, the Navy. The same plan is being carried out in every department, but I shall speak only of the Navy.

Standardizing Naval Affairs.

"We have as you know the fighting fleet, the first line of defense. To keep that fleet properly functioning we have a large industrial establishment on shore, the largest part of which is the Navy Yard. The average person does not realize how large the Navy Yard is, but we employ over 50,000 people there. We set out to get a dollar's results for every dollar spent. We found in many navy yards five different types of organization. Anyone knows you can't run any business successfully without having methods standardized. Therefore we started abolishing the five types of systems and substituting one standardized type to govern all.

"To show you what it means, we found a system of cost accounting, a method of bookkeeping by which every bit of work was checked up. That is an excellent thing if it goes to anyone who can use it, but it was not going anywhere, nobody paid any attention to it. Now we have a man whose job it is to get the costs and compare them, and to say to Boston that it is costing more to do certain work there than at New York so we will do the work at New York unless the cost can be cut down to the New York cost.

Standardizing Buying.

"Next, we have one man charged with looking after all yards and seeing that buying is done economically and to see that all yards get what is bought; to give information to all yards of prices at the other yards and let them know what is being done.

Expense of Obsolete Ships.

"We found many obsolete ships dating from the Spanish-American War. They were of no use to us in war but were an expense in time of peace because they had to be overhauled and repaired and we had to keep crews on them. We sold them and turned the proceeds in the treasury.

Obsolete Real Estate.

"Next we looked over our real estate holdings to see whether all of them were necessary. We found a lot were not not of any use. We found one reservation of 1,100 acres in Georgia that had been purchased in 1857 because it contained white oak which was necessary then in building wooden ships. Wooden ships had gone their way for many years but still we owned that reservation.

"Then we found a reservation bought in 1814 for a naval station, but no naval station ever was built there. And we found islands that were set aside for the same purpose where nothing ever was done except pay for a caretaker for fifty years. We asked Congress for permission to sell such places and turn the money in the treasury.

Other Changes.

"We made other changes. Goods passed three inspections where only one was necessary. We worked out a method whereby we cut down that force thirty per cent and do the work efficiently.

"You know it is cheaper to buy in bulk, so we beleived it would be good to follow that plan for the navy and we worked out a purchasing plan for all departments of the government. If we're getting any quantity of coal for one place and getting good coal, one agency will purchase all that coal. (Applause.)

No Sensational Saving.

"This work is not sensational. It is not work that people cheer about, but it is awfully necessary and awfully practical. Every dollar spent unnecessarily comes right back on all of you; it comes on you fathers and you mothers when you buy shoes and everything else for yourselves and your children. To save money in a practical way is the first thing we set about to do in the way of efficiency and economy.

Limitation, Not Disarmament.

"Next President Harding has not neglected constructive work. He undertook a big debt when he called a conference to consider the Far Eastern question and to try to arrive at a limitation of armament. That is something we are all vitally interested in and we constanly hope for the success of the plan.

"I want to draw your attention to certain errors that are being printed and circulated. There are many people who are talking and writing about disarmament of all nations.

"Folks of Ulster county, nothing such as that is contemplated or possible. President Harding's notes and speeches have referred to limitation of armaments. Disarmament is a physical impossibility. Anybody who talks about disarmament is either a fool or a knave.

"I will tell you just what I mean. Suppose all other nations had no army or navy; would we keep ours? Yes, we would. Why? Because there are numerous things having nothing to do with war but only with police duties which a nation must maintain an army and navy for. At the present time we are putting down piracy on the Yang-tse river. If we don't, our merchants can't trade there; if our merchants can't trade, our country can't be prosperous. We must keep ships to keep down piracy on the high seas. Other nations are responsible for preservation of law and order in certain places and that is so of us. We have a police force to see that government is stabilized. There is an irreducible minimum below which we cannot go. So much for that question.

Disarmament By Example.

"The next fallacy being preached is 'Disarmament by example.' There are people all over the country who are putting up their hands and saying, 'Let us set an example by disarming first.' Now, folks, let's be practical.

"When you were a little boy or girl, especially if you were a boy, and you were walking down the street with a nice lot of apples and another little boy came along carrying half a brick, and you picked up half a brick besides keeping tight hold of your apples, if the other little boy asked you why you didn't put down your brick, you said you would put down your brick when he put down his. Isn't that so? Now that is common sense. We are going to get disarmament out of this conference, but it will be when everybody puts down their half bricks at the same time.

A Prophecy Come True.

"The other day I was reading a book written by a Chinaman about 2,200 B. C. which impressed me considerably. He wrote at that time: 'What then can be said of those scholars of our time, blind to all great issues and without any appreciations of relative values who can only bark out their stale formulas about virtue and civilization, condemning the use of military weapons. They will surely bring our country to impotence and dishonor and the loss of rightful heritage, or at the very least they will bring about invasion and rebellion, sacrifices of territory and general enfeeblement.'

"Friends, look at China. How true his prophecy was history shows. The President has said that great armaments do not prevent war. The other side of the shield is undeniably true: reduced armaments do not prevent war. This country never was prepared for any war it went into, but it went into a number of wars.

America's Hope.

"We want a reduction of armament because we believe it will help keep some wars away and lighten the burden of taxation, but it won't eliminate all wars. That's the last point I want to make.

"We hope and expect to get a limitation of armament, to see taxes lightened and certain dangers of wars eliminated, but we don't expect to see all chances of wars eliminated and we don't propose to disarm by example, to disarm ourselves and then blandly wait for the other nations to disarm. Reduction is to be proportionate all around.

The Test To Apply.

"We are all good American citizens, but there is one thing we should all do, and that is to 'kick in' and take an interest in the government.' Find out what's going on in the government and in the legislature, and express your opinion. Don't be afraid to speak right out. If things are mismanaged, it's your fault.'

"When a problem comes up to be decided, have one maxim: 'Is this for the good of my country, my own United States?'

"If you don't answer it in the affirmative, don't have anything to do with it."

Cheers for "Teddy."

Lieut. Col. Roosevelt spoke easily and enunciated clearly. It will be noticed that he, like his father, uses the simplest words, selecting wherever possible words of one syllable instead of longer words. Nobody in the large crowd had any trouble to hear him. The crowd cheered when he finished, and cheered again when Postmaster DeWitt proposed three cheers.

"T. R." and DeWitt.

Postmaster DeWitt spoke briefly, saying there was one of the "old crew" left who would try to be as loyal to President Harding as he had been to his predecessor, Woodrow Wilson. He was particuarly interested in Lieut. Col. Roosevelt because of two incidents in the DeWitt family in connection with the late President Roosevelt. While the latter was in the assembly at Albany, in 1883, he was attacking vigorously an up-state bill and the up-state members for their attitude, but catching the eye of the speaker's father, who was serving in the assembly, said: "I do not refer to Mr. DeWitt of Ulster county."

"What was your father's name?" inquired Lieut. Col. Roosevelt, interrupting.

"My father was D. M. DeWitt of Ulster county," replied Postmaster DeWitt.

"Why," exclaimed Lieut. Col. Roosevelt, "I was reading some of father's old diaries only lately and came across that name a number of times."

"Many years later," continued Postmaster DeWitt, "a member of the DeWitt family in a public place, overhearing a criticism of our government for allowing the sale of munitions to the allies, undertook to explain that our government did not seek to control the sale of munitions to any belligerent but that it was up to the purchaser to protect its purchase after it reached the high seas; he was overheard by ex-President Roosevelt's secretary, who asked his name and address, and the following day a cordial letter was received from Theodore Roosevelt himself inviting him to come to his office and talk over that matter. That letter from Theodore Roosevelt is treasured in the DeWitt archives."

Postmaster DeWitt read letters of regret from Judge G. D. B. Hasbrouck and Poultney Bigelow of Malden-on-Hudson, both of whom expressed a warm regard for Lieut. Col. Roosevelt. He also presented Lieut. Col. Roosevelt with a printed invitation to visit "Rebecca at the Mill," which Mr. Roosevelt accepted.

The "Boys" and "Teddy."

At the close of the speaking, the crowd formed in line in front of the speakers' stand, passing between rows of police, where Lieut. Col. Roosevelt was introduced by Postmaster DeWitt and County Chairman Elting, each picking out by name and political affiliation Democrats and Republicans respectively. Mr. Roosevelt shook hands with hundreds of the crowd and was particularly interested when Clarence Voss of Phoenicia and other ex-service men who had served with him overseas introduced themselves and announced that they were proud to have followed a man they knew from experience to be a fighter from the word go. The ex-service men received an extra handshake and an expression of good wishes for their future.

FUNERAL OF MRS. ROSENBAUM

The funeral of Mrs. Mae Jordan Rosenbaum, who was found dead in the bath room of her apartment on Riverside Drive, New York city, last Saturday afternoon, was held Tuesday morning from the home of her mother, Mrs. Margaret Jordan, at Maple Hill, near Rosendale, and later from St. Peter's Church, Rosendale, where a solemn Mass of requiem was celebrated. The autopsy performed by Acting Chief Medical Examiner Benjamin Schwartz of New York city, disclosed that death had been due to acute indigestion and that Mrs. Rosenbaum had not taken poison as first intimated.

During the World War, Mrs. Rosenbaum was active in New York city in connection with war drives for the Salvation Army and Knights of Columbus. She was a woman of remarkable beauty and her picture frequently was published in connection with war drives. She was married to Dr. Rosenbaum thirteen years ago but they separated more than a year ago. No divorce ever was obtained.

Dr. Rosenbaum did not attend the funeral at Rosendale. He sent a long telegram of condolence to Mrs. Jordan, his mother-in-law, in which referring to his wife, he said: "She was too conscientious for this world. My deep sympathy to you and all your family. I am a nervous wreck and have been advised by my physician not to undertake the trip, but am with you in deep sympathy."

Mrs. Rosenbaum is survived by her mother, who is a lifelong resident of the town of Rosendale, six brothers, all of whom are engaged in business in New York city, and three sisters. The funeral was largely attended, a number of friends coming from New York city to be present, and during the Mass several solos were rendered by Mr. Cudahy of New York city, a friend of the family.

The statement that Mrs. Rosenbaum had been employed as a model by Charles Dana Gibson, the celebrated illustrator, is erroneous. She had been offered that position but had declined it.

THE OFFICE CAT

Seems To Be Effervescing.

With the country spending a billion a year for soft drinks, what becomes of all that money prohibition was going to make safe.

Muddled Or Never.

A recent experience of a Virginia clergyman throws light on the old English law requiring that marriages should be celebrated before noon. A colored couple appeared before him asking to be married, the man in a considerable muddled state.

The minister said to the woman: "I won't perform this ceremony."

"Why is dat, boss?" she queried. "Ain't de licenses all right? An' we is of age."

"Yes, but this man is drunk. Take him away and come again."

Several days later the couple presented themselves, the man once more obviously intoxicated.

"See here, I told you I wouldn't marry you when this man was drunk," the minister said testily. "Don't you come back here till he's sober."

"Well, you see, suh," the woman replied apologetically, "De trufe is dat he won't come less'n he's lit up."

Many a man will give another man a letter of recommendation, though he wouldn't lend him a dollar.

And say his ways are quite the best,
But while we praise him oftimes we
Impose on him like all the rest.

A PLANT OF MODERN EFFICIENCY

NOW UNDER CONSTRUCTION

We are building the most modern factory of its kind, designed by The Osborn Engineering Co., of Cleveland, Ohio, engineers of many years of practice and observation, to conserve space and motion to operate at the lowest possible cost. Machinery of the most efficient type will be installed and the plant operation will be under the management of one of the most reliable rubber superintendents in the country.

When completed the HUDSON factory will be the largest rubber plant in the East and will manufacture rubber tires of all description on a large scale.

MEASURE THE FUTURE OF THE TIRE INDUSTRY BY THE GREAT STRIDES OF THE PAST

Evolution of the Automobile

Less than twenty-five years ago only six million dollars was invested in automobiles. Today there are 9,211,295 licensed cars and trucks in the United States representing a total estimated investment of eight billion dollars. The sales of motor cars during the past fifteen months alone totals more than three billion dollars. No other industry in history has made such rapid strides during such a short period.

Tires Primary Essential

Following the invention of a successful gasoline motor, automobile development has been conditioned almost entirely on the development and perfection of rubber tires. The pneumatic tire has furnished the incentive and the possibilities. Without rubber tires the motor car would be practically useless.

Increasing Demand

Twenty years ago the value of manufactured rubber goods in the United States was $50,000,000. Ten years later the amount was $250,000,000, and in 1917 it had increased to $900,000,000. The figure for last year was $1,400,000,000, of which approximately one billion dollars was for automobile and truck tires.

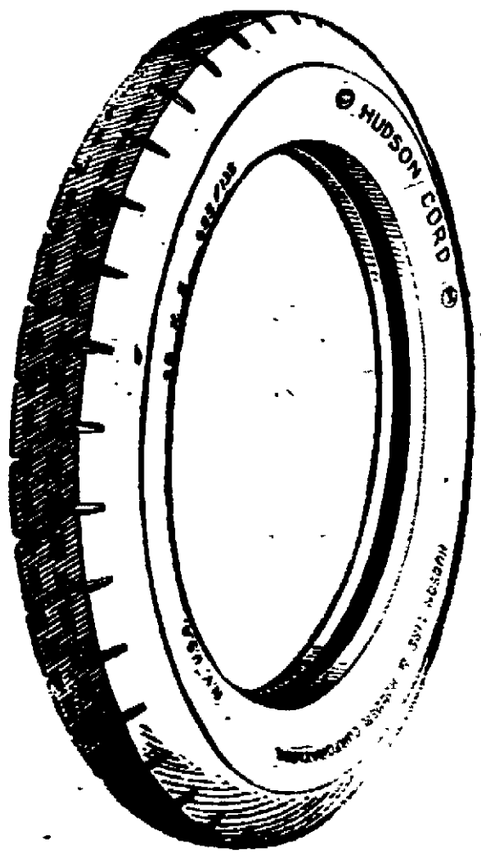

Industry is Wealth

The tire industry, one of the most important fixed essentials in the country today is getting down to the men who know the most about it. Based on principles firmly established by long experience and observation as builders and organizers, we will utilize the most successful methods and eliminate all doubtful practice both mechanically and financially.

A Problem Solved

Tires are a necessity and the demand is increasing with every new car produced. Furthermore, tires wear out and have to be replaced constantly. The Hudson factory is located in the most intensively developed section in the United States where the demand for tires is greatest and will solve the acute problem of direct factory service and co-operation to hundreds of thousands of automobile and truck owners.

A RUGGED TIRE

The HUDSON Cord Pneumatic is the product of tested experience. It has a patented positive non-slip tread and will give big service. This tire will be made for all classes of cars and in giant sizes for motor trucks and will be a big seller.

MAIL THIS COUPON TODAY

Your Opportunity

Thousands of people who had the opportunity to invest moderate sums in ORIGINAL issues of tire stocks have become well-to-do. Many who had the foresight to invest a substantial amount have become wealthy. The tire industry is still young—greater progress yet to come. This is an opportunity to share in still larger earnings by investing in the securities of this Corporation.

Money intelligently invested under expert management has great cumulative earning power. "HUDSON TIRES made in YONKERS" will demonstrate the truth of this statement.

ON-A-JOB, OFF-A-JOB JIM!

Being a Story Of how Jim got on a job and why he got off it again.

Personality is a great factor in landing a job. Jim realized that fact in the early days of his attempt to win the $3,000,000 inheritance by getting a new job every two days. If he could make people like him, he found that they put themselves out to get jobs for him.

When it was learned that Jim would not mix cement more than two days, the boss exerted himself to find out what he would do. As the lathers were expected the next day, Jim volunteered to help them. He had never lathed a house before, but he at least knew how to handle a hammer.

The boss lather, McCoy, did not approve of Jim's assistance, and to show his attitude, put him to work in the closets; the small quarters and many short lengths made work doubly hard for the man who was not an adept, and when McCoy called him down for his ignorance in laying the short lathes horizontal instead of diagonally across the narrow partitions, he felt like throwing down his hammer and quitting.

But he was learning self-control along with his other lessons, and kept his tongue in leash. He had worked on the ceilings only a short time when a splinter dropped into an unprotected eye. Jim gave a howl of anguish. It hurt terribly as he groped around the room trying to keep from blinking.

"Blow your nose," "Roll your eye," "Try to cry," came advice from all directions. All in vain. The splinter, which seemed an inch long and as wide, remained in, and the agony increased.

At last Jim arrived at the village drug store and asked for assistance. "Sure," said the clerk, "we've got plenty of eye-stones. They'll take the splinter out in a jiff."

"Give me one." Jim had never seen an eye-stone, but anything seemed better than a splinter. The clerk laid a-round, polished stone on the counter. It was half an inch in diameter and fully an eighth of an inch thick.

"What am I going to do with that?" asked Jim. "Play ball?"

"Put it between your eyelid and eyeball, and roll it around."

"Give me something easier." Jim turned away in despair, and met a dainty, black-eyed girl who had been watching him.

"I think I can help you. Have you a match?"

"Now don't tell me to put a match in between lid and ball and let it roll around."

The girl laughed as she took the match from him and stood on tiptoes to reach his eye. She deftly placed the match on his lid which she rolled up on it. Underneath, exposed to full view, lay the offending splinter, which was speedily removed with the tip of her handkerchief.

"Say, you're a brick," Jim cried, eager to thank her, but he was too slow. With a merry nod she fled, and Jim hurried out. She was nowhere in sight, and the boy turned lagging steps back to his job of lathing.

CAR WENT RIGHT ON.

After Striking Auto of Accord Party, Injuring Them.

Accord, Sept. 1—Cyrus Hendrickson of this place, Fred Bell of New York City and their sons, narrowly escaped death Sunday afternoon when their car was struck back of the front wheel by another car that was going by them near Nelson Christiana's. The car landed upside down pinning several of the occupants under it. Help soon arrived and they were speedily released. The boys were not injured but the men were quite badly bruised. The car that did the damage never even hesitated in its journey toward Kingston.

MOVES BACK TO 13TH CENTURY

Turkish Nationalists Shift Their Capital to Sivas.

ONCE AN IMPORTANT CITY

Armenian Kings Ruled It for a While and Under the Byzantines It Was the Second Most Important City in Asia Minor—In Marco Polo's Time It Was One of the Show Places of the Near East—Sivas May Be a Turkish Ruhr or Silesia.

"If the so-called 'Angora government' of the Turkish Nationalists has left Angora and shifted its capital to Sivas, as dispatches state, following the defeat of its armies by the Greeks in Asia Minor, it has truly moved into the Turkish back country," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic society. "In fact it might almost be said to have moved from the Twentieth century into the Thirteenth. Angora is the rail head of the only steel highway that penetrates northern Asia Minor. Beyond this outpost of the age of machinery the country is wholly dependent for transportation on the camel and other beasts of burden, operating over roads that are far from good. Sivas lies more than 200 miles south of the Black sea.

"The city exists, however, in a region that reached a very high state of development long before the smoke of puffing locomotives ever darkened an Asian landscape, and it is no mean city, as cities go in its part of the world. It is credited with a population of 65,000, and is therefore of about the size of Little Rock, Ark., and Sacramento, Cal., cities with which it has the further point in common that it is the capital of a 'state' or vilayet.

May Be Turkish Ruhr.

"Sivas is situated on a high plateau which is bleak and even frigid in winter when the blasts from the steppes of central Asia swirl around and over the Caucasus and give the region a climate comparable to the snow-swept plains of Russia. But it is by no means a waste country. The grain of the plateaus of the vilayet of Sivas and the fruits from its valleys help to feed the less favored sections of Turkey. It is rich in copper, iron, coal and other valuable minerals, and if an industrial Turkey ever rises Sivas may be its Silesia or its Ruhr.

"When Rome was the ruling power in the world, Sivas (then Sebastia) was one of its chief border cities. Armenian kings ruled it for a while, and under the Byzantines it was the second most important city in Asia Minor, being surpassed only by Caesarea to the southwest.

"If in a 'union station' for camel caravans in the Bagdad of Haroun-al-Rashid's day there was the counterpart of the train-crier of today, Sivas must have been often on his lips, for it lies in a strategic position between Bagdad and 'points west.' A few years later it became the metropolis of the Seljuk Turks' empire in Asia before they moved westward and captured Constantinople.

"When Marco Polo visited the city in the Thirteenth century it was one of the show places of the Near East and had a population of about 100,000. At that time the city was noted for its fine rugs and carpets, but now that industry has passed farther west.

One of Most Heartless Acts in History.

"When the Seljuks had the seat of their empire in Sivas their architectural arts flourished. The colleges which they built there in the Thirteenth century are among the finest remains of Moslem art to be found in Asia Minor.

"Perhaps the most despicable act of cruelty ever perpetrated on a wicked city, even in a part of the world where cruel tyrants have been numerous, was inflicted on Sivas in 1400 by the notorious Timur the Lame. He caused a thousand children to be trampled to death under the hoofs of his war horses, and followed this monstrous proceeding by having 4,000 of the defeated Armenian defenders of the city buried alive. Since it went through that harrowing experience the city has never risen to a position of any great importance."

FIND RELIC OF OLD LONDON

Arch of Bridge Which Must Have Been Built Centuries Ago Just Brought to Life.

A very interesting relic of old London has come to light, according to the London Times, an arch of old London bridge, which was demolished during the construction of the new London bridge, which began in 1825. The arch now discovered is the second from the north side of the old bridge, and is close to St. Magnus' church. It was disclosed during some building operations now in progress.

The first stone bridge over the Thames was built in 1176, but the bridge was constantly repaired and restored, so that there is no evidence of the exact date of this particular arch. It was apparently medieval, and is built of Reigate stone with a very flat trajectory. At the beginning of the Eighteenth century, however, three flat wrought-stone supporting ribs were put in, and the middle one of these is dated 1706. The arch is not yet entirely uncovered, but a springer at each side is just being disclosed, and the span is estimated to be about 30 foot. The under surface of the arch is considerably waterworn between the added ribs. It is one of the arches close to which the mill wheel stood for the raising of water into the watertower that stood alongside the bridge. This arch stood in the river, and is, therefore, an evidence of the limits which, as time has gone on, have been imposed on the Thames, the river being now much narrower than it was in medieval times. It is understood that this relic of old London is to be carefully preserved.

CROWDING THE SEA SERPENT

Old Friend of the Ocean Summer Resorts Makes Way for Pirate Ship From Russia.

We believe but one sea serpent has been sighted so far this season. Perhaps it is still a little early, but the weather has been hot enough to bring our old friend to the surface, and no doubt the frightened and delighted visitors at shore resorts and those who go out to sea in boats for a short distance will soon be rewarded with a sight of his ugly head or fascinated by the water churned up by the swishing of his angry tail. However, it is possible that the sight more calculated to thrill will be the pirate ship from Russia that is moving in such a mysterious way its wonders to perform. If this is so, we are certain that for every view of the sea serpent that is recorded on the part of credible witnesses there will be 20 equally credible witnesses who caught a glimpse of the new terror of the deep, long, low and dark, either just before it submerged or at the moment it came to the surface to cast its eye about for a new ship to capture and sink or to drag away the crew in irons to Bolshevik Russia. To the elderly skeptic who inquired where such a craft secured its necessary fuel the less critical young woman answered that it probably operated by electricity. What could be more probable?—Hartford Courant.

Flower Worth Small Fortune.

Ten thousand dollars is an extraordinary price for a single plant; yet it was paid by English horticulturists for an orchid raised in America, the Cattleya gigas alba.

This Cattleya was flowered in 1910, and exhibited at an orchid show in the United States, where it was awarded a gold medal. The plant was found in 1909 in a lot of other specimens of Cattleya gigas. It was only by chance that the plant was not sold for a dollar or two. The only reason was that after most of its companions had been disposed of this one, with some others that were not in very good condition, was set aside. Finally all the specimens were potted.

To the great surprise of the horticulturists when, next spring, the plant came up it was with pure white flowers. The plant was sold in London for perhaps the highest figure that an orchid ever brought.

Apology Needs an Apology.

"Gentlemen"—it came from the lips of an attorney pleading a case recently before the Supreme court of the state of Idaho. In front of him sat the judges clothed with their judicial dignity, listening intently to the case. The attorney had erred. Judges should be addressed as "Your honors."

"omen"—repeated the lawyer. ... ...test hint of a smile flitted ac... ...eatures of the men in front of him.

Suddenly he stopped, realizing his blunder.

"I apologize for calling you 'gentlemen,'" he blurted out.

Laughter in a courtroom is not deemed exactly proper, but a joke is a joke and Chief Justice Rice replied smugly, "I hope you made no mistake."—Idaho Statesman.

British Museum Overcrowded.

The British museum, says a London writer in the New York Post, has reached the end of its rope, so far as space is concerned. By the law of 1911 every English author, whether domiciled at home or in the dominions, is obliged to place two copies of his books with the museum, which in turn guarantees to keep them in good condition and make them accessible to the reading public. The same applies to newspapers. Space for the latter was exhausted some time ago and a special barracks was built to store them. It is now feared that the same plan will have to be adopted for the books.

The Cause.

Every reporter knows that the success of his story is due to his falling down on it.—Boston Transcript.

Imaginary Pain.

Long after his wounds are healed a returned soldier may feel pain in them. This pain, according to Dr. Arthur F. Hurst, physician and neurologist to Guy's hospital, London, is due to the impression made on the patient's mind by the original pain. In spite of the fact that the cause of the pain has gone, his mind has got so accustomed to feeling the pain that he continues to feel it. "It has generally been ascribed," said Doctor Hurst in a recent lecture before the Royal College of Surgeons, "to nerve fibers becoming involved in scar tissue, but nothing abnormal may be found at operation." Such patients are rapidly cured when the matter is thoroughly and carefully explained to them.

Pipes Credited to Greeks.

The invention of the pipes is credited to the ancient Greeks, and a similar instrument to the Hebrew tribes. In the Fifteenth century the bagpipe was the favorite instrument throughout Germany. The first instruments were constructed from the hide of a sheep, and through holes in the side four pipes were thrust. One of them, the chanter, had holes similar to those of a flute, and was capable of reproducing a number of notes. The other three were drones, and could sound but a single note. Little change has been made in the instrument through the centuries except in the matter of decoration and the range of tunes that are identified with the harsh skirling.—Detroit News.

East Indian Superstition.

The moon's release from the jaws of a mythical demon was anxiously watched and prayed for by thousands of people throughout India during the last eclipse. Hindus regard an eclipse as the act of a demon called Rahu, who is believed to swallow the moon and then disgorge it. On the Howrah bridge in Calcutta, dense crowds waited for the first glimpse of the veiled moon; then with one voice they cried out, "Isko Chhordo! Chhordo!" ("Let it go! Leave it.") Before dusk the River Hooghly was thronged with bathers, as bathing during an eclipse is considered a soul-saving act. Beggars swarmed through the city, and as it is a virtue to give freely on these occasions they collected plenty of small coins.

HOG RECOVERS RING

Roots Up Wedding Band Lost Twenty-Five Years.

To the snout of a hungry hog Mrs. Omego King of St. Joseph, Mo., owes recovery of her gold wedding ring lost 25 years ago, three days after her marriage.

Mrs. King's husband went out to chase the porker from the barnyard, where he was rooting. Looking down he noticed a glittering ring, just a little tarnished from the dirt.

The hog will not be butchered. He will be kept as an heirloom, to die his natural death.

Blue Bird for Happiness.

To those of us who believe in the blue bird as a harbinger of happiness, it is gratifying to know that a much more brilliant one than our blue bunting exists, says a correspondent. It lives in California, is a little larger than our kingfisher and has feathers of a glorious blue. Among its companions are humming birds—tiny, bright-colored, timid things, with long, long bills, which they bury deep into the blossoms, hoping, perhaps, for their part, to find happiness hidden therein. Meantime, grey and white mocking birds, with long tails and a very cheeky expression, look on with scorn.

EXIST AS OF OLD

Country May Be Said to Have Made No Progress Since Dawn of the Christian Era.

The next time I see a railway system I am going to make a deep salaam to it—even if it is government owned. Picture a country almost three times the size of France without any railroad to speak of. If you could float over that territory you would see most of the people living exactly as their ancestors did in the centuries before Christ.

In seed time you would see men plowing with one hand, two oxen and what looks like a piece of crooked stick, writes Maude Radford Warren in the Saturday Evening Post. In harvest time you would see the oxen trampling out the wheat from the chaff. You would see mills consisting of a couple of stones and a stream of water. You would discover in this vast area only one waterway, no rivers to speak of, and but four main roads. Of these four only two are fully practicable for vehicles, and even they do not equal third-class European roads. They were made or repaired by foreigners. On them you may see a few motor cars, also instituted by foreigners. And by no means do they travel with the ease and cheapness of the cars of the West. There is a good telegraph system, but letters nowadays take weeks and even months to travel from one side of the country to another.

You would see no real mines of coal or copper, no quarries, no cotton mills or clothing factories, no foundries or machine shops, no big electrical installations; none of the modern improvements that we westerners consider essential to prevent stagnation. It is medieval, this land, as no country can possibly be nowadays that has railways, with all which that connotes. Here time does not matter; nothing matters. There is but little sense of isolation, little consciousness of backwardness, little urge of progress, little realization of the necessity of surveying the country to find out its resources, little moral obligation to develop all powers and promises.

Sometimes resources are not even conserved. Wood is appallingly scarce and coal seventy-odd dollars a ton, and yet many who cut down trees do not replant. The industries are simple—copper and brass work, skin collecting, tanning, rug weaving, dyeing. The one great industry, oil wells, is under the control of foreign power. And if the tentative observations of outsiders are to be trusted, the country is amazingly rich in oils, in minerals, including coal and iron, and in parts its agricultural products are abundant and of first quality.

It is Persia.

Mystery Grass.

In England a mysterious grass which grows in muddy flat land and bears the name of Spartina Townsendi, is giving the scientists "furiously to think" just at the moment. This reedlike grass was first observed in 1870 in Southampton Water, but for many years it attracted little attention except from botanists. Latterly, however, it has started to grow at a positively alarming rate. It has spread rapidly over the mud-flats about its place of origin, until now it occupies dozens of square miles. It has a remarkable capacity for holding mud, and in this respect it acts as a protector of the coast-line and a reclaimer of land. This is all right in some districts. On the other hand, in such places as Poole Harbor the channels are in danger of becoming choked by it, because by making the mud together it prevents the scour of the tide from carrying it out to sea. If this danger can be counteracted, the new grass may be useful as a food for stock and as raw material for paper.

Improved Fuel Oil Engine.

A Louisiana inventor has succeeded in developing a new fuel oil engine of semi-Diesel design, in which the excessively high compressions of this type are eliminated, says Popular Mechanics Magazine. Owing to the use of an improved fuel-injection jet and a method of preheating the oil, it is claimed that the power impulses are smooth expansions rather than abrupt, racking explosions, and that, for this reason, the engine can be built lighter than existing models of heavy oil burners, making it suitable for installation in passenger automobiles and motortrucks.

Schools and Museum Co-operate.

Natural history study in Cleveland, O., will be enhanced by affiliation of the public schools with the museum of natural history to be established in that city. At consultations of the museum director, the superintendent of schools and the staff of each, tentative plans were formed by which the resources of the museum may be utilized by the school children. The museum probably will not be built for two or three years.

Dismisses Women Teachers.

Women teachers are no longer employed in French schools for boys. The authorization to employ them, granted during the war, has been withdrawn, because the return to normal life has rendered men teachers available.

WAR OFFICE FEARSOME PLACE

According to Captain Bairnsfather, British Institution Is Designed to Be an Annoyance.

I have not been to the British war office very often, writes Capt. Bruce Bairnsfather in "From Mud to Mufti," but I have never lost the odd sensation that it gives rise to. You enter the building and fill out a form. In time a Boer war veteran tells you boisterously to "follow the girl." The girl, a guide of sorts in an engineer's dark brown overall, sets off sullenly down a cement passage, with a group of assorted officers pursuing. She, I fancy, revels in the intricacies of those catacombs.

Having apparently described a complete parallelogram in a forbidding-looking corridor, you suddenly come upon a lift. It is always disappearing upward when you arrive. It comes down suddenly and disgorges an assorted crowd; headed by the girl guide, you enter and are taken up. We all repeat the corridor-and-parallelogram business. Nothing but the girl guide can save you now.

Lost in the war office! How awful that would be! I can imagine how a visitor who had lagged behind the guide would stop, suddenly realizing that he was lost; how he would vainly beat on those stone walls and scream for help; how a typist would find his skeleton weeks later in an attitude that evidently showed that he had succumbed while endeavoring to gnaw his way through a door.

I followed the guide and, after being handed to several officials, at last came up with the official whose duty it was to prevent, if possible, anyone from seeing the officer who had summoned me by letter.—Youth's Companion.

TREASURE TROVE IN LONDON

Chance Discovery Has Led Antiquarians to Believe They Are on Eve of Rare Find.

A chance discovery of a piece of blue enamel, curiously marked, by H. S. Gordon, a London mining engineer, has turned a vacant plot, where garden truck was grown, into a treasure trove. Today diggers are busy digging and sifting every bit of the earth, believing that it is on the edge of an old Roman cemetery, used centuries ago.

Digging into one part of it the men say they can trace London's history by strata to thousands of years ago. It is estimated that London's level increased at the rate of one foot a century. Things appear to have been thrown into the place, which must have been a queer pit, as though it had been a place for refuses. Its rare treasures are mostly broken bits of jewelry, china, glassware, etc. One exquisitely carved ornament of pure gold, evidently part of a golden collar, was found, and is estimated to have been made between 400 and 500 B. C.

Some of the most interesting objects are broken pipes, a whole series ascending through nearly four feet of soil, illustrating the pipe's evolution from the days of Queen Elizabeth.

Swatting the Fly.

"Have you stopped swatting the fly?" asked Charles H. Taylor of the Boston Globe, who was here attending a meeting of the international arbitration board, an organization that settles disputes between printers and publishers. He was not addressing this question to the board, but simply making an observation as a swarm of flies rose from the street.

"I know that a year or two ago when I was here you were advising everybody to swat the flies, and the result was that you had comparative freedom from these pests. Now I notice that they have increased. In Boston we have repeated the fly swatting instructions until we are rid of flies. This is another case where eternal vigilance is required, but it produces results. I find flies in some of your restaurants and soda places, which, of course, Indianapolis will not long tolerate.—Indianapolis News.

Land and Water Ship.

The hippopotamus is now rivaled by an amphibious tank that travels equally well by land and water. It is a tank only in the sense that it originated in the fighting tanks of the war, for it is, as a matter of fact, a passenger vehicle. When ashore, it travels on endless tread wheels, and looks like a motorbus; when afloat, it is propelled and acts like a launch. It is the invention of a Frenchman, and was recently tested, carrying six passengers, in Marseilles, the great Mediterranean port. The French got around the difficulty of giving it an appropriate appellation by calling it a land and water ship.—Popular Mechanics.

Japanese Judicial Regalia.

Speaking of robes, that worn by the first judge of the Japanese Supreme court is a work of art and as heavy with embroidery as the vestments of the padres of the little San Germain church in Porto Rico. The color is black and the texture fine. Around the neck is a collar, woven like the cloth itself and not worn separately, as is the collar of the chief justice of England. The color of the embroidery of this collar is royal purple, and is called the "crest of the seven flowers of prudencia." The cap, something after the order of the navy stand sport hats worn by the American women, is also black, with design of "flattened clouds" around top and side.—New York Tribune.

An Easy Guess.

Nothing is easier than believing that duty calls when you want the job anyway.—Ohio State Journal.

SPARKS CIRCUS NOTABLY CLEAN

Circus day in Kingston today brought a large crowd of visitors from all parts of Ulster county who enjoyed the parade of Sparks Brothers Shows which was held this morning and attended the performance this afternoon.

The circus is showing on the Foxhall avenue circus lot near Stephan street. The parade was about as long as the average circus parade and was notable for the fine display of horses and the general appearance of neatness and cleanliness of animals, wagons and people.

The line of march was from Cornell street up Broadway to Albany avenue, to Clinton avenue, to North Front street, to Wall street, to Main street, to Clinton avenue, to Albany avenue, to Broadway, to Foxhall avenue and thence to the circus grounds. The management had intended to parade on Broadway to Delaware avenue and then through Delaware avenue and Hasbrouck avenue to Foxhall avenue, but the torn-up condition of Hasbrouck avenue, which is being Willited, made it impossible to carry out that plan and it was impossible to turn at Delaware avenue and then countermarch on Broadway without stopping all traffic, so the line followed was adopted by the circus management as being the most feasible.

The lions, tigers and other wild animals in cages were displayed to good advantage. Five elephants presented an interesting appearance, and a team of camels hitched to one of the wagons attracted much attention.

The Sparks circus leaves an impression for cleanliness and lets it be known that it is still conducted along these same lines and the absence of games of chance, grafters and short-change artists is still a noticable, as well as a commendable feature. Newspapers from all of the nearby cities embraced in its itinerary pronounce it to be the cleanest circus of them all.

Harvest Home Festival.

A harvest home festival, with an elaborate exhibit and sale of farm produce and home supplies will be held in the Mount Marion Church Hall Tuesday and Wednesday, September 20 and 21. Ice cream will be served on the 20th from 5 to 9 p. m.; and a cafeteria lunch in the afternoon and evening of Wednesday. A prominent speaker is scheduled to deliver an address on the evening of the 21st and on the same evening Hal Eppes of Accord will lead a community sing. Historic articles made by past generations of this district will be on view both days.

Gas Wholesales For 20 Cents.

The average wholesale price of gasolene is 20.2 cents a gallon in thirty leading cities of the United States, compared with an average of 29.3 cents a gallon on January 1, a decrease of 9.1 cents, or approximately 31 per cent. The largest decline since January 1 have been recorded in Dallas, Tex., and Denver, Col., amounting to 13 cents in each city.

A Malden Fracas.

A Malden fracas with Harry Smith vs. Mrs. James Rightmyer as the principals, came on before Justice H. D. Abeel in the Saugerties court, on Tuesday and the case was adjourned to Thursday, defendant being released on bail furnished by Frank G. Phelps. Smith alleges Mrs. Rightmyer assaulted him with an ax. The fracas is the outcome of a long standing feud between the parties.

ODDS AND ENDS.

Morris Miller has just purchased a new Sheridan sedan which he has added to his taxi service.

There were no cases in police court this morning, and no arrests were made during the night by the police.

A remarkably beautiful Clematis vine is now in bloom in the yard of Mrs. M. E. Lockwood, 13 Belvedere street, the vine nearly covering a fair sized tree.

Boiceville Reunion Labor Day.

The annual reunion of residents of Boiceville and their neighbors whose homes were acquired by the city of New York for the construction of the Ashokan reservoir, will be held at Lambert's Grove, West Shokan, on Monday. The Rev. Mr. Rittenhouse of Brooklyn will make an address and there will be other interesting speakers. The Boiceville reunion has become one of the largest and most important annual affairs of that kind in the Catskill Mountain region, and all former residents of Boiceville and their neighbors are urged to be present. Every family will take its own lunch. A band will furnish music during the day and there will be other attractions.

"Catrox" Near Suffern.

A rare cattle disease known as "catrox" threatens the herds of many dairy farm in the vicinity of Suffern. The disease is said by veterinarians to be one of recent manifestation and inspectors of the State Board of health will make a thorough study of it. Charles Courter, who has a large dairy at Oakland, lost a prize bull and three milk cows from the disease. The cattle are attacked without any previous signs of sickness, and death occurs within twenty minutes. So far as can be learned the disease has no effect upon the milk of cows that it attacks.

Saugerties Well Represented.

Former County Treasurer John A. Snyder of Saugerties represented the Saugerties Chamber of Commerce at the meeting of opponents to the plan to build a pontoon bridge across the Hudson river at Yonkers, which was held in New York city on Wednesday. Today Mr. Snyder represented the Saugerties Chamber of Commerce at the conference at Albany to discuss ways and means to develop the port of New York and shipping through the barge canal and Hudson river in preference to building the St. Lawrence canal.

Cemetery Incorporated.

Supreme Court Justice G. D. B. Hasbrouck has approved the incorporation of the North Marbletown Cemetery Association, Inc., and the certificate of incorporation has been filed in the office of the Ulster county clerk. The legal title was formerly held by the consistory of the North Marbletown Reformed Church of the town of Marbletown. The directors until the first annual meeting are Jesse DuBois, Louis Bevier, until second annual meeting, Ira Palen, Louis B. Basten; until third annual meeting, Garrett N. Oliver, John C. Oliver.

RACE TO LAND MANY IMMIGRANTS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Sept. 1.—Four steamships loaded with immigrants, which had been waiting at Sandy Hook for several days to land these passengers because the August quotas of the nationalities involved were exhausted, made a dash through the fog for Quarantine immediately after midnight. Two of the ships carried about 2,000 Greek immigrants whereas the September quota only allows 657 Greeks to enter. The Greek steamship Alexander won but the commander of the Acropolis which lost out by two minutes, said he would take the matter into the courts.

Quick Aid Prevents Fire.

It is well to keep a small fire-extinguisher convenient to the kitchen as a first aid to possible fire. These extinguishers are of great value when the fire has first started, but are useless after it has made headway. Just as with a first-aid kit, their value lies in their being at your service at a moment's notice.

CHILD NEVER SAW TRAIN

Little Chicago Girl Lives Near Terminals, but Has no Curiosity.

Although living within easy walking distance of five great Chicago railway terminals, Dolly Malley, thirteen years old, has never seen a railroad train. "I just never cared about going away from here," she said. "I was born and raised in this neighborhood and it's good enough for me."

"Palaces" of Early Times.

Palaces are now the abodes of princes or kings, but the word was once used in a totally different sense. Phillips gives the derivation from pallets, pales or paled fences. In Devonshire a palace was a storehouse; in Totness "a landing place, inclosed but not roofed in." Thus in an old lease drawn in 1708 we come upon the clause, "all that cellar . . . and the little palace and landing-place adjoining the river Dart." In the forty-fifth Psalm, the eighth verse, is the sentence "out of ivory palaces," that is the storeplaces of cabinets made of ivory.—London Times.

West African Tornadoes.

The "tornadoes" of West Africa are thunder squalls, totally different from the exceedingly violent small whirling storms that bear this name in the United States

Where Cheeses Are Made.

Cheeses are generally named for the town or district from which they come. American cheese is the name used for that form of the English cheddar generally liked in this country. Brie, Camembert, Coulommier, Neufchatel and Roquefort are French cheeses from different parts of France, and differing in some cases very much in flavor and appearance. Edam and Gouda cheese are from Holland. Gruyere, the cheese of many holes, is from Switzerland, and the strong-smelling Limburger comes from Belgium, and not from Germany, as is often supposed.

ON-A-JOB, OFF-A-JOB JIM!

Being a Story Of how Jim got on a job and why he got off it again.

Personality is a great factor in landing a job. Jim realized that fact in the early days of his attempt to win the $3,000,000 inheritance by getting a new job every two days. If he could make people like him, he found that they put themselves out to get jobs for him.

When it was learned that Jim would not mix cement more than two days, the boss exerted himself to find out what he would do. As the lathers were expected the next day, Jim volunteered to help them. He had never lathed a house before, but he at least knew how to handle a hammer.

The boss lather, McCoy, did not approve of Jim's assistance, and to show his attitude, put him to work in the closets; the small quarters and many short lengths made work doubly hard for the man who was not an adept, and when McCoy called him down for his ignorance in laying the short lathes horizontal, instead of diagonally across the narrow partitions, he felt like throwing down his hammer and quitting.

But he was learning self-control along with his other lessons, and kept his tongue in leash. He had worked on the ceilings only a short time when a splinter dropped into an unprotected eye. Jim gave a howl of anguish. It hurt terribly as he groped around the room trying to keep from blinking.

"Blow your nose." "Roll your eye;" "Try to cry," came advice from all directions. All in vain. The splinter, which seemed an inch long and as wide, remained in, and the agony increased.

At last Jim arrived at the village drug store and asked for assistance. "Sure," said the clerk, "we've got plenty of eye-stones. They'll take the splinter out in a jiff."

"Give me one." Jim had never seen an eye-stone, but anything seemed better than a splinter. The clerk laid a-round, polished stone on the counter. It was half an inch in diameter and fully an eighth of an inch thick.

"What am I going to do with that?" asked Jim. "Play ball?"

"Put it between your eyelid and eyeball, and roll it around."

"Give me something easier." Jim turned away in despair, and met a dainty, black-eyed girl who had been watching him.

"I think I can help you. Have you a match?"

"Now don't tell me to put a match in between lid and ball and let it roll around."

The girl laughed as she took the match from him and stood on tiptoes to reach his eye. She deftly placed the match on his lid which she rolled up on it. Underneath, exposed to full view, lay the offending splinter, which was speedily removed with the tip of her handkerchief.

"Say, you're a brick," Jim cried, eager to thank her, but he was too slow. With a merry nod she fled, and Jim hurried out. She was nowhere in sight, and the boy turned lagging steps back to his job of lathing.

CAR WENT RIGHT ON.

After Striking Auto of Accord Party, Injuring Them.

Accord, Sept. 1—Cyrus Hendrickson of this place, Fred Bell of New York City and their sons, narrowly escaped death Sunday afternoon when their car was struck back of the front wheel by another car that was going by them near Nelson Christiana's. The car landed upside down pinning several of the occupants under it. Help soon arrived and they were speedily released. The boys were not injured but the men were quite badly bruised. The car that did the damage never even hesitated in its journey toward Kingston.

"Penelope's Web."

"Penelope's web," meaning a work that never progresses, comes from Greek mythology. Penelope, the wife of Ulysses, being importuned by several suitors during her husband's long absence, made reply that she could not marry again, even if Ulysses were dead, till she had finished weaving a shroud for her aged father-in-law. Every night she pulled out what she had woven during the day, and thus made no progress toward the completion of the shroud. The French say of a work "never ending, still beginning," c'est l'ouvrage de Penelope.

ONEONTA AND COLONIALS TIE

Darkness Ends One of Best Ball Games Ever Seen Here in Eighth, With Score 3 to 3—Walsh Shows Flashes of Former Greatness.

In eight innings of baseball that abounded in thrill after thrill, sensation after sensation, Ed. Walsh's Oneonta Giants and the Colonials battled their way to a 3 to 3 tie. Darkness put an end to the proceedings after the Kingston team had tied the score in their half of the eighth.

To Artie Rice, veteran of many a hard fought battle, belong the honors of the day. It was the popular third baseman's double in the fifth inning that brought the locals on even terms with the visitors, and again in the eighth, after Oneonta had taken the lead, Rice carried in the tying run.

Few contests that have been staged at the Athletic Field have been so hotly fought as was yesterday's game Plays that bordered on the seemingly impossible were made time and time again. In the first inning Moore seemed to bob up from nowhere and stuck out his gloved hand to make a most marvelous catch off Hatch's bat Fitzgerald, after misjudging a fly ball, turned it into a beautiful catch, grabbing hold of the ball after it had bounded out of his hands. Herman, on third for the visitors, got everything that came his way and covered his territory in big league style.

The fame of Ed. Walsh and his team attracted the largest Wednesday crowd of the season, and the attendance was exceeded only by that of Saturday's game against the Poughkeepsie Regulars. Ground rules again were necessary, a hit into the crowd in either right or left field going for two bases.

Walsh convinced the more than two thousand fans who saw yesterday's game that he is far from being all in as a pitcher. It is true that the speed of former days is gone, but the old "spitter"—the "spitter" that for years made him one of the most feared pitchers in either major league circuit—is still there Holding the heavy hitting Colonials to six hits in eight innings is a feat few other pitchers have been able to accomplish this season.

Baird, the first Oneonta man to face Culloton, led off with a wicked drive between Schwab and Fitzgerald and drew up at third. Steffin and Hatch went out, the latter on Moore's sensational catch, and it looked as if Baird would languish on third. Herman hit to Schirick, Baird crossed the plate when the Kingston captain missed the grounder. Byrnes followed with a single, and Herman scored and Byrnes went to third when Farrell doubled to center

Some splendid baseball by the Colonials now saved them some more trouble. Farrell took a lead off second, and Robins shot the ball to Deegan. Farrell then attempted to go to third and Byrnes to score, but Deegan got the ball back to Robins and Byrnes was run down for the third out.

Kingston came back in their half of the first and found Walsh for one run. Fitzgerald sent up a high foul which Byrnes was camped under. But the ball didn't stick in the first baseman's glove, and Fitz was given another chance. He showed his gratitude by sending a hot single to center, and went to second when Schirick laid down a neat sacrifice. Jack Robins then came across with a single, and Fitz went to third, from which point he scored on Deegan's sacrifice fly.

Neither side was able to send another man over the rubber until the fifth, when a most unusual play aided Kingston in tying up the score. With three and two on Schwab, first man up. Walsh started to deliver the ball He stopped before making the throw, however, then completed his motion and sent the ball up. Schwab hit a fly ball to Farrell, but Umpire Jordan called a balk, and Schwab went to first, the balk making the fourth ball. The decision caused considerable discussion on the part of the Oneonta team.

Moore sacrificed Schwab to second, and then Rice sent the score into a tie with a timely double.

Baird was the gentleman who caused more trouble for the Kingston team in the seventh. Harlow started off the inning with a single. McGrath attempted to sacrifice, but instead hit into a fast double play, Culoton to Deegan to Connors, the latter covering first base. Walsh, who is something of a hitter as well as a pitcher, singled. Baird followed with his third hit, this time a triple to center which Fitzgerald made a hard try for but could not quite reach, and Walsh crossed the plate.

It was rapidly growing dark, and the Oneonta players were entertaining fond visions of being the first team to defeat the Colonials on their home lot. But they reckoned without one Artie Rice. The third sacker was up first in the eighth, and put the crowd on edge when he doubled to right. Culloton was out when his third attempt at a bunt went foul. Fitzgerald was now up, and the fans implored Fitz to bring Rice in. Lee listened to their pleadings, then shot a single to right, and Rice came home with the run that tied the score.

When the fans had settled down to their usual calm demeanor once more they saw Ed. Walsh, one of the greatest pitchers of all time, leaving the box, and Scanlon taking his place. It was a wise move on Ed's part. In the semi-darkness Scanlon, a fast ball pitcher, was more effective than Walsh, and the next two batters went out, ending one of the greatest games of the year.

Stones Swallowed by Elephants.

The habit of swallowing stones appears to be more or less common among elephants. The British museum contains a collection of 168 stones, averaging the size of a hens' egg, all taken from the stomach of one African elephant.

First Daily National Bank.

Bank of North America was the name of the first bank of a national character. It had a charter for ten years, from 1741, from the confederation, but doubt as to its legality led the bank to seek and obtain a charter from the state of Pennsylvania in 1783. In 1785 this latter charter was revoked, but in 1787 it was renewed. It was located at Philadelphia.

Measuring Raindrops.

Raindrops are measured by permitting them to fall into a shallow tray containing dry flour or plaster of paris. Each drop thus makes a cast of itself, which is carefully measured. The largest raindrops are about a quarter of an inch in diameter.
